BRITISH FLY OVER VIENNA

STORY ON PAGE 2

Grief for Mother—Overwhelmed by details of the slaying of her daughter, Mrs. Mayme Stevens is revived by Rita Stevens after swooning during Mauch Chunk, Pa., trial. Trooper Benjamin Franklin, charged with the slaying, contends he shot the girl "to protect my own life and the man who was with me." The trial continues today. Story, Page 6

Phone Proposal—Reaching the decision of marriage via the telephone, Joan Bennett, actress, and Walter Wanger, film producer, today were being sought by well-wishing friends after their surprise elopement and wedding at Phoenix, Ariz. It was Miss Bennett's third marriage, Wanger's second.

BRITISH FLY OVER AUSTRIA

THEY COOK FOR TOMMIES —Student cooks of the British army have their hands inspected before they handle victuals to be fed the troops . . . a hand-out parade.

LONDON, Jan. 13 (AP)—British fliers in "the greatest wartime survey flights" penetrated Bohemia and Austria during the night, carried on the North sea warfare by attacking Nazi destroyers and today destroyed a German air raider over the Firth of Forth, the air ministry announced in a series of communiques.

The exploit of scouting over the southeastern parts of Greater Germany was the first of the war to be reported in that region.

A British war correspondent in France reported the British operated from French bases and flew over both Vienna and Prague.

Fliers starting from their home soil would have had to cover the equivalent of the distance over the Atlantic from Newfoundland to Ireland for the reconnaissance.

(The International News Service quoting an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Royal Air Force headquarters in France, said the British bombers made the Vienna-Prague flights under extreme difficulty. Bitter cold caused ice to form on wings and controls. Flying at great height over the German battle lines, the planes dropped down over Vienna and Prague and released thousands of leaflets.)

FEAR SABOTAGE

As German planes roared along the east coast of Britain for the fifth successive day, the war of words kept pace with the accelerating war in the skies when the air ministry called "untrue" a Nazi high command announcement that two Royal Air Force planes were shot down.

At the same time fears of sabotage were expressed as sentries fired on prowlers at Hendon Airdrome, northeast London. An attempt apparently was made to cut the Scotland-Northern Ireland cable at Donaghadee, Northern Ireland, and fire routed Northern Ireland's governor, the Duke of Abercorn, and his household from 300-year-old Baronscourt castle.

Explosions and fire swept a shipbuilding plant at Northwich, Cheshire, western England. Officials said sabotage was not involved.

In today's aerial operations the air ministry said a fighter patrol shot down a Nazi raider off the southeast coast of Scotland in the morning.

3 GERMANS KILLED

The German plane was a Heinkel. A launch picked up a German officer adrift in a rubber boat. He said the other three members of the Heinkel's crew had been killed.

Later three German planes flew over a Norfolk port and a plane believed to be a German craft was seen flying low off a southeast coast port in the afternoon.

Three Royal Air Force fighters roared in pursuit but the invader fled toward the English channel, throwing up a smoke screen.

In addition to the scouting flights over Bohemia and Austria, the Air Ministry said "security patrols were maintained over Helgoland Bight" and northwest Germany was surveyed.

The coastal command sighted three German destroyers Thursday, it announced, and dropped bombs close to the craft.

The German high command announced two British planes were

Turks Hail Italy Drive on Reds

ANKARA, Jan. 13 (AP)—Indications that Italy is taking the lead for a "united front" in southeastern Europe against possible aggression by Soviet Russia were hailed widely today as meaning double security for Turkey.

Italy's position was regarded by Turkish political leaders as "unambitious opposition to Soviet enterprise in the Danube basin or the Balkans."

Rome's efforts were viewed as being virtually in complete harmony with British and French aims—for a Balkan bloc that would be a barrier to both Russian and German expansion. Turkey is allied with Britain and France in a mutual assistance pact.

Latest of a series of talks aimed at subduing Balkan differences for the duration of the war was, a source close to the Turkish government disclosed, a Sofia conference between a Numan Menemengoglu, Turkish foreign affairs general secretary, and Bulgarian Premier George Kiosseivanoff in which Bulgaria was urged to moderate or drop for the present her claim on Rumania for war-lost Dobruja.

Unrest Over Fuel Lack In Berlin

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 13 — London newspapers gave wide prominence today to dispatches from many sources which described hardships in Berlin resulting from heavy snowstorms and an unprecedented cold wave.

The German capital is suffering an acute coal shortage, dispatches said, and reports from Amsterdam predicted possible serious demonstrations if the situation is not soon alleviated.

(Editor's Note—Direct dispatches from Berlin yesterday admitted a shortage of fuel, ascribed to frozen waterways which hampered shipment of coal. Messages said 20,000 Jews had been put to work to clear the Berlin streets of snow.)

Reuter, the British news agency, reported from Amsterdam lack of fuel caused throngs of men, women and children to spend the last few nights in Berlin's warm railway stations.

Many took blankets and mattresses, as well as spirit lamps and portable stoves to cook emergency meals.

Police "were unable to force out the refugees," Reuter said.

Made aware of the gravity of the situation, the dispatch said, Berlin authorities negotiated an immediate agreement between army leaders and representatives of the coal industry, whereby supplies of fuel presumably destined for military use will be diverted to large cities.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Zurich said Berlin authorities had placed the capital's entire tramway system at disposal of the ministry of transportation to facilitate delivery of coal and potatoes.

Viewed impartially, the flood of British reports on the situation would indicate a transportation tie-up due to cold, snow, ice and military exigencies rather than a coal shortage itself.

50,000 Reds Killed, 50,000 Wounded as Russia Fights Trap

By PETER DE HEMMER GUDME

HELSINKI, Jan. 13 (INS)—Russia, counting at least 50,000 dead and 50,000 wounded in the Finnish campaign, sought desperately today to snatch some sort of prestige-restoring victory from the debacle by rescuing three divisions trapped in the Salla and Lake Ladoga sectors.

Drives by the Russians were under way in the Salla and Ladoga areas, as well as in the Arctic front below Petsamo, and Joseph Stalin rushed in more reinforcements to prove that the Red army is as effective on blood-reddened snow and ice as it professed to be on paper.

Foreign military observers, placing the Russian dead at a minimum of 50,000, said the Finnish losses in the six weeks of war were far smaller in comparison.

(An Associated Press Helsinki dispatch said Soviet Russian bombers raided southern Finland today, killing two persons and wounding four in Helsinki alone. Some buildings were destroyed and others damaged in the southwestern section of the capital, which escaped being bombed in yesterday's raids. Other cities struck included Hyvinkaa, north of Helsinki, where Russian squadrons carried out two attacks. About 40 bombs fell on Helsinki. One bomber was reported forced down.)

KING'S GHOST WRITER—Revealed as the author of the moving words spoken by King George at the conclusion of his Christmas Day broadcast, this unassuming lady, Miss Minnie Haskins, has won fame in a roundabout manner . . . as the ghost writer for a king. King George, in concluding his Christmas Day address to his empire, said: "I feel we may all find a message of encouragement in the lines which . . . I should like to read to you: 'I said to a man who stood at the gate of the year, "Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown," and he replied, "Go out into the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God. # Doll Girl's Mother Stirs Death Trial

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., Jan. 13—Screaming "Why did they kill my little child," the mother of slain Joan Stevens collapsed in court today as the case of a suspended state trooper accused of shooting the so-called "doll girl" neared a jury after a week's trial.

ANN SOTHERN

"Why did they kill her?" the heartbroken mother cried out again and again. "My poor child. I loved that child of mine.

"God said, 'Thou shall not kill'—she was only 14. She didn't know any different."

The outbreak of the sobbing mother, who collapsed on several other occasions during the week-long trial, was by far the most dramatic scene enacted in the century old courtroom.

SCENE MOVES CROWD

The packed court chamber sat in stunned silence as the woman was taken outside. The jury of nine men and three women also was visibly affected, their eyes glued on the pitiful scene.

The outburst came just after the jury had returned to the courthouse after examining a small sedan in which Corp. Benjamin Franklin, 30, shot the schoolgirl last June 5.

He says he fired in self-defense when Joan brandished a "gun" he later learned was a toy. Pale-faced and trembling, she returned to the courtroom a few minutes later on the arm of a daughter.

Franklin, sitting in the front row with fellow troopers, appeared unmoved by the woman's collapse.

The crowded courtroom was hushed when Franklin testified he shot Joan after she brandished a "pistol" that "looked real to me."

The gun proved to be a toy automatic.

He described Joan, a seventh grader, as a rouged and painted "young lady" who talked of gangsters and bank holdups and who threatened to "blow your —— brains out."

RE-ENACTS SLAYING

Franklin demonstrated how he ducked low in the front seat of the car and fired, dramatically re-enacting the scene by stepping down from the stand, the toy pistol in his hand.

He didn't aim, he said, but held the gun, an automatic borrowed from another trooper — over his head and fired "blindly" into the back of the car.

Eight bullets struck Joan whom Franklin and Private Edward J. Swatji had picked up because, the defendant said, she promised to give them a "tip" on a robbery plot.

Boy Prefers Home, Kin to Ann Sothern

LEMON COVE, Cal., Jan. 13 (AP) — Twelve-year-old David Hobbs, who got homesick at the Beverly Hills mansion of Actress Ann Sothern and Band Leader Roger Pryor, is back with his 11 brothers and sisters, playing around their tent house on the banks of the Kaweah river.

"They were swell to me, but I just wanted to be home," said David.

Miss Sothern noticed the boy's fine appearance two years ago when she saw him selling newspapers at a Dallas, Tex., hotel where Pryor's orchestra was playing. She arranged with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hobbs, for him to live at Beverly Hills with the prospect of eventual adoption.

Recently, when David's parents visited him at Beverly Hills, he begged to be allowed to go home with them. His parents joined Miss Sothern in attempting to dissuade him, but the boy insisted he would be happier with his brothers and sisters.

The family lives in this central California town, 350 miles north of Hollywood, in tents on the ranch of Courtney McCracken. Says David:

"I liked Mr. Pryor, Cesar Romero, Don Ameche and the other actors and actresses who visited the home. All of them were good to me. Miss Sothern was most wonderful.

"But I wanted to be home."

Whole Town Battles $500,000 Flames

REDDING, Cal., Jan. 13 (AP)—Scores of Redding's 3000 residents joined the town's eight salaried and 40 volunteer firemen in battling a fire today which levelled a downtown block and for a time threatened the entire business district.

A mysterious explosion preceded the blaze. Damage estimates ranged upward from "more than $500,000."

STRAFFORD, N. H., Jan 13 (AP) — Mrs. Mary J. Cummings, who claims she is "too young to use a cane," celebrated her 101st birthday anniversary at the Durgin farm here today. She is looking forward to voting for a Republican presidential candidate next fall.

Food Poisoning Kills R. I. Boy

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Jan. 13 (AP)—Elton E. Brierly, 8, died early today, and his seven-year-old brother, John, is in a critical condition, of food poisoning, which attacked them after they had eaten meat loaf at home Thursday night, police said.

The boys became ill several hours after the Thursday night meal, but went to school yesterday morning. When they returned home at noon yesterday, their condition was so serious a physician was summoned. He ordered them removed to a hospital.

Other members of the Brierly family were not made ill.

DOWD'S 'ESCAPE PLOT' TOLD FOLEY

A pre-escape huddle between the fugitive John F. Dowd and three men behind closed doors of a Milton home was revealed by Dist. Atty. William J. Foley today after questioning of Dowd relatives.

Henry J. Lyons, a South End plumber and uncle of Mrs. Dowd, told of the conference as he admitted he was the relative who drove Mrs. Dowd from the Back Bay railroad station to her mother's home upon her return to Boston New Year's Eve.

With him at the time was an unnamed niece, who also faced interrogation, Foley said.

Lyons, who lives in Warren st., Roxbury, told Foley he saw Dowd at the home of a Milton relative on Nov. 19, a day before Dowd disappeared from Boston.

Dowd had been in a conference with three men, and although Lyons couldn't hear the conversation or identify the voices, he indicated one man was a well-known sportsman who helped Dowd in escape plans, Foley said.

Foley quoted Lyons as saying he arranged to meet Mrs. Dowd in his car after he was visited at his home by the Dowd niece.

Meantime, Inspector Joseph Cunningham and Lieut. John J. Watkins were continuing search for Dowd in upper New York state.

DEPUTIES FACE OUSTER

Boy Prefers Home, Kin to Ann Sothern

LEMON COVE, Cal., Jan. 13 (AP) — Twelve-year-old David Hobbs, who got homesick at the Beverly Hills mansion of Actress Ann Sothern and Band Leader Roger Pryor, is back with his 11 brothers and sisters, playing around their tent house on the banks of the Kaweah river.

"They were swell to me, but I just wanted to be home," said David.

Miss Sothern noticed the boy's fine appearance two years ago when she saw him selling newspapers at a Dallas, Tex., hotel where Pryor's orchestra was playing. She arranged with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hobbs, for him to live at Beverly Hills with the prospect of eventual adoption.

Recently, when David's parents visited him at Beverly Hills, he begged to be allowed to go home with them. His parents joined Miss Sothern in attempting to dissuade him, but the boy insisted he would be happier with his brothers and sisters.

The family lives in this central California town, 350 miles north of Hollywood, in tents on the ranch of Courtney McCracken. Says David:

"I liked Mr. Pryor, Cesar Romero, Don Ameche and the other actors and actresses who visited the home. All of them were good to me. Miss Sothern was most wonderful.

"But I wanted to be home."

Whole Town Battles $500,000 Flames

REDDING, Cal., Jan. 13 (AP)—Scores of Redding's 3000 residents joined the town's eight salaried and 40 volunteer firemen in battling a fire today which levelled a downtown block and for a time threatened the entire business district.

A mysterious explosion preceded the blaze. Damage estimates ranged upward from "more than $500,000."

Food Poisoning Kills R. I. Boy

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Jan. 13 (AP)—Elton E. Brierly, 8, died early today, and his seven-year-old brother, John, is in a critical condition, of food poisoning, which attacked them after they had eaten meat loaf at home Thursday night, police said.

The boys became ill several hours after the Thursday night meal, but went to school yesterday morning. When they returned home at noon yesterday, their condition was so serious a physician was summoned. He ordered them removed to a hospital.

Other members of the Brierly family were not made ill.

DOWD'S 'ESCAPE PLOT' TOLD FOLEY

A pre-escape huddle between the fugitive John F. Dowd and three men behind closed doors of a Milton home was revealed by Dist. Atty. William J. Foley today after questioning of Dowd relatives.

Henry J. Lyons, a South End plumber and uncle of Mrs. Dowd, told of the conference as he admitted he was the relative who drove Mrs. Dowd from the Back Bay railroad station to her mother's home upon her return to Boston New Year's Eve.

With him at the time was an unnamed niece, who also faced interrogation, Foley said.

Lyons, who lives in Warren st., Roxbury, told Foley he saw Dowd at the home of a Milton relative on Nov. 19, a day before Dowd disappeared from Boston.

Dowd had been in a conference with three men, and although Lyons couldn't hear the conversation or identify the voices, he indicated one man was a well-known sportsman who helped Dowd in escape plans, Foley said.

Foley quoted Lyons as saying he arranged to meet Mrs. Dowd in his car after he was visited at his home by the Dowd niece.

Meantime, Inspector Joseph Cunningham and Lieut. John J. Watkins were continuing search for Dowd in upper New York state.

DEPUTIES FACE OUSTER

SEN. KING SAYS DEAL BALKS RECOVERY BY HOARDING GOLD

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—The Treasury, nearly a year ago, it became known today, effectually blocked a Senate bill which would have restored a free gold market in the United States along the lines advocated by Winthrop W. Aldrich.

That bill, through the adverse influence of the administration, remains bottled up, unacted upon, in the Senate committee on banking.

In the opinion of economists and students of the monetary question in Washington, if that bill had been enacted into law, the economic recovery of the country, on a permanent and substantial basis, would have begun early in 1939.

The bill was introduced by Sen. William H. King, of Utah, Democratic member of the Senate finance committee, and member of the special silver committee.

SEN. KING "ENCOURAGED"

At the same time he introduced a bill to repeal the emergency powers of the President with respect to fixing the weight of the gold dollar. The bill received a prompt adverse report by Sec. Morgenthau.

The other bill, the effect of which would have been to carry out the sound idea now advanced by Aldrich and restore the United States to the gold standard, received a non-committal report upon which the bill was promptly pigeonholed in committee.

It has not seen the light of day since.

Sen. King, fully approving and supporting the plan advanced by Aldrich, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank of New York, said today he felt "encouraged" by the interest the bill is now sure to bring about.

"I shall now redouble my efforts," he said. "This business of hoarding gold in a vault in Kentucky is stupid. It should be terminated. So far as I understand Mr. Aldrich's statement, I am in agreement with him.

PERIL IN HOARDED GOLD

"I have, for a number of years, believed that our policy in draining the nations of the world of their gold and burying it in the ground, would prove disadvantageous to the United States and most injurious to the nations drained of their gold.

"If we persist in this course the day may soon come, and it was envisioned by Mr. Kynes in his last book upon money, in which he indicated that if the world were drained of its gold and it were concentrated in one or more nations, it would be demonitized and would thus become a redundant currency.

"Undoubtedly our policy in draining gold from the world has disturbed if not undermined, its banking policies and made it impossible for it to meet foreign obligations and to maintain commercial dealings with other nations.

POLICY "INJURIOUS"

"So long as obligations among nations are payable in gold it is obvious that if gold is not available then obligations so payable may not be paid and commercial international transactions will be limited if not prevented.

"I think our policy in draining the world of gold has been, as I have indicated, not only injurious to the United States but injurious to the nations with which we have heretofore had large and extensive commercial transactions.

"Several years ago I insisted that we should not purchase gold in the sense in which it is now purchased, but that if individuals or foreign countries desired to send their gold to the United States, the mint would receive it, but would mint it into currency in either $5, $10 or $20 denominations as desired, and pay for the gold in coins so minted.

"Those coins would of course have been in circulation; they would have found their way into the channels of international trade and commerce; they would have tended to replenish the treasuries of other countries which have been denuded of their gold.

"In other words, gold would not have flowed into one country and been drained from other countries, but the policy which I have indicated would have made gold [illegible] international currency, [illegible] is not such now."

DOG TRACK LOBBYIST REFUSED CUT IN BAIL

Walter T. Mason, 49, State House lobbyist for the Dighton dog track, today faced the prospect of a week-end in East Cambridge jail as U. S. Commr. Howard W. Robbins refused the plea of defense counsel for immediate reduction of Mason's $25,000 bail.

Mason, charged with perjury in connection with the federal grand jury probe of the dog track, was represented by Atty. Herbert F. Callahan, who asked the bail be cut to $5000.

REFUSES TO CUT BAIL

Henry M. Leen, assistant U. S. attorney, immediately opposed Callahan's motion, declaring "the government will resist all such efforts."

Commissioner Robbins announced he would take the plea under advisement until Monday. The court observed:

"Perjury is a serious charge. The bail Mr. Callahan suggests I could not accept."

Atty. Callahan declared that Mason, whose wife and four children reside in South Boston, would be unable to "make the prohibitive bail of $25,000."

PERJURY ALLEGED

Mason, the lawyer declared, had made no effort to escape the subpoena of the federal grand jury, "but voluntarily returned from Florida to appear."

In opposing reduction, U. S. Dist. Atty. Edmond J. Brandon told the court that Mason's position has been "changed from witness to defendant."

The high bail was set by Robbins yesterday at request of Leen, who accused Mason of hampering the track investigation and an investigation of the income of James J. Egan.

As Leen read the formal complaint against Mason, he revealed for the first time that the tax returns of Egan, former Boston schoolhouse commissioner, are under fire.

The prosecutor asserted Mason's arrest resulted from alleged false testimony in conection with payments made to him by Egan.

An investigation of promoters and operators of another Massachusetts track may be undertaken after the Dighton case is finished, Leen explained, and for that reason he resented the delay.

Pushing their probe of the Dighton track, federal officials issued a subpoena for the appearance of Mrs. Margaret Ravenscroft of Medford, Egan's sister, but she was excused until Tuesday. Among witnesses questioned before the federal grand jury were:

Henry J. Duffy of North Quincy, former Dighton track employe and cousin of Edmund L. Dolan; Alice L. Murphy, former secretary to Egan; Thomas J. Flynn, Dorchester; Joseph Driscoll, Brookline architect; Arthur and Charles McQuiston, former track employes, and Frank R. Anderson, Miami Beach, Fla.

Police Quiet 11 as Fire Perils Cambridge Cells

Flames raced through the Cambridge municipal building today, directly over the heads of 11 terrified prisoners in cells at Cambridge police headquarters.

Third mysterious blaze in the building within six months, the fire swept a large room in which a branch of the Cambridge Public Library is located.

The flames were fed by masses of valuable books and officials said the loss would be estimated in thousands of dollars.

At the height of the fire, quantities of ammunition in the third floor was endangered and firemen concentrated numerous lines of water on the ceiling of the burning library room.

Patrolman John Healey detected the odor of smoke as he entered the central station locker room, on the first floor. As he went upstairs toward the library, he met a blast of smoke and flame.

An alarm was sounded by telephone from the police station and Lieut. Thomas Stokes and Patrolman Leo Dynan went to the cell room to calm the prisoners.

So heavy was the smoke that firemen had to wear masks to battle the flames. Smoke poured through offices of the municipal agent, police inspectors, bureau of records, police chief and radio rooms on the second floor.

Throughout the fire, Patrolman Manuel Mello, switchboard operator, held his post in a second-floor room not far from the blaze.

Heavy damage was caused to police quarters on the first floor.

Kin of 92 Mine Dead Dry-Eyed in Grief

BARTLEY, W. Va., Jan. 13 (AP)—Mine families ever conscious of the danger of losing their loved ones displayed little hysteria while preparing today for burial of the 92 men given up for dead in the Bartley No. 1 mine gas explosion.

Stoically they made ready to claim the victims as rescue crews dug deeper into blast-torn corridors 600 feet underground, no longer seeking living men but the bodies of coal diggers apparently killed in their tracks.

FIND 34 BODIES

Rescue crews emerging from the 620-foot perpendicular shaft announced 34 bodies had been recovered from the explosion-shattered "rooms" along the entries fanning out two miles from the foot of the shaft.

They told how one group of 14 trapped miners, equipped with canvas sheets and wood for barricades, apparently had attempted to make a desperate last stand against the deadly after-explosion gases.

The group was led by Lee Hall, one of the three foremen lost in the blast Wednesday. Nine of the bodies were huddled together; a few feet away were three others and still farther down the entry, two more.

ONLY THREE IDENTIFIED

But "after damp"—the gases that remain in a mine when an explosion burns up the oxygen in the air—caught and killed the group.

None of the bodies had been brought to the surface and only three were identified. Rescuers planned to move them to the foot of the shaft for identification before starting them out today.

Finally breaking through the center of the blast scene after 38 hours of tunnelling, workers yesterday found only battered bodies and abandoned hope for miners caught farther back.

Raymond E. Salvati, vice president of the Pond Creek Pocahontas Coal Corporation who led rescue crews day and night, declared penetration was sufficient to eliminate any possibility the men had escaped explosion gas.

Everett Woman's Alarm Saves 100

An elderly Everett woman, who screamed an alarm before she collapsed from the effects of deadly gas, today saved the lives of 100 or more neighbors in Greater Boston's third gas case within a week.

Police, after tracing the gas to a leaking main, aroused more than 100 persons in the Prospect st. neighborhood.

Six persons, also directly affected by the gas, were placed under care of nurses from Whidden Memorial Hospital.

FALLS AFTER ALARM

Miss Maude Plummer, 63, detected the odor after she entered the bathroom of a rooming house owned by Mrs. Florence Sarby, 68.

Fighting her way out, she screamed a warning to Mrs. Sarby, then collapsed.

Working with an inhalator, police and firemen restored Miss Plummer to consciousness.

Mrs. Sarby, despite nausea, had first notified police, then opened all windows.

UNDER NURSES' CARE

City health officials placed Miss Plummer, Mrs. Sarby, Miss Jessie Wilkie, 59, and Miss Ellen Wilkie, 61, under the care of nurses.

Also affected by the fumes were Leander Sarti, 39; his wife, Elizabeth, 34, and their 20-months-old son, Donny, police reported.

Last Saturday a Cambridge mother and her son were killed by seeping gas, while 11 others were affected in East Boston.

Winthrop Narrow Gauge Solution Seen in Parley

A "good solution" for the Narrow Gauge Railroad was promised today by Frederick I. Crocker, chairman of the seven-man Winthrop committee, after a meeting in Boston of bond holders and a representative of the committee.

Discussion was so enthusiastic, he said, that a special meeting was called later today in Winthrop of the entire committee and the bond holders.

As the result of last night's Revere mass meeting, he added, a Revere representative has been appointed to join in this afternoon's conference.

BALLOTS DISTRIBUTED

More than 2000 ballots were distributed to Oak Island and Point of Pines residents to make a choice of the Eastern Massachusetts Railway, the Boston Elevated or an independent bus line—in case the Narrow Gauge is discontinued.

The result will be submitted to the city council.

The first meeting of the two groups, held in the National Shawmut Bank Building, was reported as "harmonious" by Chairman Crocker.

Counsel for the bondholders told the Winthrop group that $65,000 would be needed to keep the road in operation until June and between $30,000 and $35,000 to keep it going until March. Substantial sums, it was explained would be needed to repair equipment, ferry slips and bridges to insure safe operation of trains.

EXPECT EMPLOYES' AID

"We expect co-operation of the Narrow Gauge employes in this matter," said Crocker. "This co-operation might result in a contribution in some form from them. We are considering an increased fare arrangement, which will not be on a flat basis and will not affect the steady rider, and also economies in the operation of the road.

"We are considering the maintained service not only of the Winthrop loop but the whole Narrow Gauge system."

The Revere City Council, at a meeting attended by more than 500 residents of Point of Pines and Oak Island, was on record today as authorizing the Revere city solicitor to work in co-operation with th Winthrop committee.

The state public utilities commission will hear a motion of counsel for trustees of the New Haven Railroad Monday at 2:15 to present new evidence on the closing of 88 stations of the Old Colony division of the New Haven, Boston & Providence railroad, and New England railroad, which have been ordered reopened by the public utilities board.

If the commission decides favorably to the trustees on the motion, dates for public hearings will be announced.

It is generally believed the commission will eventually agree to permit the New Haven trustees to abandon about 40 per cent of the stations, as some are only a mile apart.

WEIGH CONTRACT AS TRUCKS MOVE

Negotiations for a new contract between truck owners and drivers were resumed today at the State House as 5600 drivers returned to work under a truce which ended a 48-hour tieup that piled merchandise high in Boston terminals.

After a short session, however, the drivers, employers and members of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration agreed to meet 10:30 a. m. Monday at the State House to iron out details of the final compromise.

The tieup of three fourths of the city's truck drivers, termed a lockout by the drivers and a strike by employers, ended as the result of a six-hour conference involving negotiating committees of workers and employers and the State Commission of Arbitration and Conciliation.

Under terms of the armistice, the following provisions were agreed to:

1—The employers agree to resume operations; employes to return to work immediately.

2—There will be no strike or lockout while reasonable progress is being made in the negotiations.

3—Each group agreed to give the other 24 hours notice prior to stopping negotiations.

4—Both groups agreed to resume negotiations before the state board.

TRUCKS BEGIN ROLLING

As a result of the temporary agreement nearly 3000 trucks began rolling again late last night after 24 hours of idleness in what union leaders charged was a "lockout" and employers termed a "walkout" by nearly 90 per cent of the 5500 union workers.

The "armistice" was declared just in time to avoid not only a serious tie-up in week-end deliveries, but a suspension of operation by the Eastern Steamship Lines because of inability to clear its terminals of inbound freight.

The temporary suspension of sailings to New York, Yarmouth and St. John's had been announced by William K. Irving, vice-president of the steamship line, but was revoked later when news of the agreement was made known.

The layoff would have affected nearly 1000 vessel, dock and office employes.

3 Sons Say Mass for Pair Wed 50 Years

With one daughter, a nun, seated between them, a grandson serving as altar boy, and three sons, priests, conducting the service, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah A. Scannell of Hillside st., Roxbury, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary today with a solemn high mass at the Mission Church, Roxbury.

The three sons, Reverend Joseph, Dennis, and Jeremiah Scannell and the daughter, Sister M. Marie had traveled a total of 10,000 miles from Brazil and Canada to make the family complete on this occasion.

Over 60 priests, representatives of the Franciscans, Passionists and Jesuits, as well as the full 27 members of the Redemptorist Order assisted at the services.

The Most Rev. John O'Leary, C. S. S. R., former rector of the Mission Church, in a sermon that brought tears to Mrs. Scannell's eyes, related how she had always wanted her children to be altar boys, and that her ambitions for them had been more than fulfilled.

Congratulatory messages were read from Bishop Richard J. Cushing, the apostolic delegate in Washington, D. C., and William Cardinal O'Connell. The couple later attended a private celebration at the University Club.

(An International News Service dispatch from Copenhagen said a Russian drive of tremendous intensity in the Salla region was reported there today. The vanguard of reinforced Russian troops was said to have reached a point 12 miles from the important Finnish railway terminal of Kemijaervi.)

A summary of the scene of five Finnish fronts from the Arctic ocean to the Gulf of Finland shows the following plight of several Russian divisions:

PETSAMO—A two-pronged Russian drive in the Arctic was begun, with temperatures at 40 degrees below zero.

SALLA—Two Russian divisions, between 30,000 and 40,000 men, advanced amid violent fighting to relieve a third division which was believed to be cut off by a Finnish pincers movement.

Earlier a division was annihilated in this sector, and it now appears, according to the Finns, that the presently trapped division—and possibly the two re-inforcing divisions—would meet the same catastrophe.

Airplanes were dropping provisions and fighting equipment for the division surrounded at the village of Salla, on the eastern front, and the Russians have encircled themselves with barbed wire and other barricades for a determined defense until aid arrives.

REPOLA—On the Russian side of the frontier, a Finnish column was fighting a Russian detachment ten miles east of the border, in the vicinity of Lake Roukola.

LAKE LADOGA—Two Russian divisions fought forward northeast of the large lake in an attempt to rescue another division trapped in a fashion similar to that which caught the division at Salla.

Parallel situations, therefore, exist at Salla and Lake Ladoga, with a division caught in each sector by the Finnish jaws, and the Russians speeding in reinforcements to rescue them

Deal Leaders Seek To Balk Filibuster

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (INS)—Administration leaders today moved to speed up the congressional legislative program and avoid a filibuster in the Senate on the anti-lynching bill, which might bog down their drive and prolong the session.

Chairman Robert Doughton (D.) of North Carolina announced that night sessions will be ordered by the Ways and Means committee, if necessary, to hasten completion of hearings on the bill extending the reciprocal trade treaty act. House leaders hope to force a vote on the measure by mid-February.

DEMAND ECONOMIES

In the Senate, Democratic House Leader Alben Barkley expressed the hope that advocates of the Gavagan-Wagner anti-lynching bill will abandon it if a filibuster develops which threatens to tie up other legislation.

Economy sentiment continued to run strong in both branches. The House met the first test by slashing budget estimates on the $265,000,000 emergency national defense bill by $7,300,000, but refused to make deeper cuts.

So strong was the demand for economy that Sen. Harry Byrd (D.) of Virginia expressed belief that "we really will get somewhere this session" in the effort to halt rising expense of government.

FLAY HIGH TARIFFS

President Edward A. O'Neal of the American Farm Bureau Federation got little encouragement in an appeal to a House appropriations sub-committee for $ 607,000,000 parity payment to farmers.

Farm bloc members of the subcommittee, however promised that they will battle for an appropriation of $200,000,000 if necessary to assist payments equal to those now being made.

Administration leaders were encouraged by the plea made by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace before the Ways and Means committee for continuation of the trade treaty law. Chief public opposition this far has sprung from farm sources.

Laying Republican tariff policies, Wallace charged that they helped to strangle Germany economically and pave the way for the rise of Hitler, which in turn was climaxed by the European war.

"Republican high tariffs sowed the seeds of the war," he said.

Prince May Head New Jap Cabinet

TOKYO, Jan. 13 (INS)—Prince Fumimaro Konoye, former premier, was pulled unwillingly into the lead today as probable successor to Gen. Nobuyuki Abe, who is due to resign as premier tomorrow.

Under army pressure, Prince Konoye outdistanced Lieut.-Gen. Sadao Araki, although the appointment was by no means certain. The prince is reluctant about assuming the apparently impossible task of trying to carry out the army's policy in China.

While the entire cabinet is due to resign with Abe, predictions were that Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura would be reappointed foreign minister so that he may continue his efforts to renew the Japanese-American commercial agreement. The pact expires on Jan. 26.

Woman Falls From Window

Struggling with a jammed window, Mrs. Helen Devere, 46, of LaGrange st., West Roxbury, was critically injured today when she lost her balance and plunged 25 feet to the street.

She fell from the second story of her sister's home in Stimson st., Roxbury. Mrs. Lucia Haerth, her sister, heard her screams and carried her into the house. At City Hospital Mrs. Devere was treated for a concussion, fractured ankle, facial injuries and a possible fracture of the spine.

Relief Costs Cut In Connecticut Cities

HARTFORD, Ct., Jan. 13 (INS)—Relief costs in Connecticut's five largest cities today were down 19.4 per cent compared with rolls a year ago, according to State Welfare Commissioner Robert J. Smith.

Reports from Hartford, New Haven, Waterbury, Bridgeport and New Britain showed an average drop of 12.2 per cent.

POSTAGE PAYS

VADUZ, Liechtenstein, Jan. 13 (AP)—The tiny principality of Liechtenstein obtained 31 per cent of its revenue last year from the sale of postage stamps to collectors throughout the world.

Warns of Fake Agents For Birthday Ball

Postmaster Peter F. Tague, Suffolk county chairman for the President's Birthday Ball, today warned the public to beware of fraudulent solicitors.

He said he had been informed by P. A. O'Connell, chairman of the Boston Retail Trade Board, that a group of men has been operating in the northeastern part of the state selling "tabs" for the fund. These "tabs," he said, are imitations.

Jackson Day Dinner Hit As Big 'Racket' by Brown

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Special to the Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 — The New Deal, after seven years of riding rough-shod over all the established conventions, stands in considerable need of a good correspondence course in etiquette.

The whole Jackson Day episode this year was shocking. The $100-dinner system of shaking down state and federal office-holders for a partisan campaign fund is such a vicious evasion of the laws of political decency and morality that it has become a stench.

The system of enforced contributions—in Boston the acknowledgment on the shake-down was brazen and brutal—should be prohibited by statute.

At Washington's shakedown three distinguished Republicans, two United States senators, and the minority leader of the House, who had been invited to attend, but who had courteously declined, were held up to public ridicule, and in their absence were treated to a dressing down, intended to be humorous, but which was merely rude.

ESCAPED "MOCKERY"

Any host who should thus attack in their absence from his dinner table friends or acquaintances who had been invited to dine, but had sent their regrets, would be regarded as ill bred.

If these distinguished leaders of the Republican party had accepted the Jackson Day invitation, doubtless they would have been stood up in dunce caps and mocked to their faces.

While in Washington Mr. Roosevelt was rededicating himself to non-partisan adherence to "national unity," his Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Wallace, at Des Moines, sought to rouse the rabble with a pious third-term hope.

And at Cleveland Mr. Jackson, soon to become Attorney General of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of a highly partisan Senate, sounded the same note.

Mr. Jackson's advocacy of a third term in itself should be sufficient to result in the rejection of his nomination by the Senate.

As attorney-general, he would be the chief law enforcement officer of the United States Government.

And here in advance of his confirmation we find him advocating the nullification of an essential and indeed vital part of the unwritten law of this land, the two term law, which has been an accepted part of our Constitution since the days of George Washington and Thomas Jefferson.

NEW DEAL IN ROWS IN 2 STATES

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 — The New Deal was involved today in two bitter Democratic intraparty rows in West Virginia and Washington, amid a series of minor political developments in other sections.

In West Virginia, Senator M. M. Neely, chairman of the Senate rules committee and ardent New Dealer, has declared war on the Democratic state machine. Neely has decided to oust the so-called "State House crowd" by running personally for governor.

His opposition is headed by Gov. Homer A. Holt, who cannot succeed himself, and former Gov. Herman Guy Kump.

In Washington, Gov. Clarence D. Martin, New Dealer, is debating the appointment of Stephen F. Chadwick, former national commander of the American Legion, to the Senate seat soon to be vacated by Sen. Lewis B. Schwellenbach, appointed a federal judge. The Administration opposes Chadwick's appointment on the ground he is New Deal critic. Reports say Chadwick has been promised the appointment and, if denied it, will bust the Democratic party wide open in that State.

On the Republican side, National Chairman John Hamilton sent invitations to seven cities to offer bids for the Republican convention. The cities are Atlantic City, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, Detroit, Minneapolis and San Francisco.

Sen. Styles Bridges, New Hampshire a G. O. P. possibility, meanwhile called on Republicans to choose uninstructed delegations to the convention. Pointing the way, he announced he would be a candidate for delegate-at-large.

Jail 2 in Plot On Don Meade

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 (AP)—The attempted extortion of $400 from Don Meade, nationally known jockey whose wife and baby were threatened with kidnaping, today brought Sing Sing sentences to two men.

Carlo Zarchone, 20, of Brooklyn, was sentenced in Queens County court to three to six years. Ralph Hamm, 25, of Jamaica, was sentenced to 7½ to 15 years.

The jockey said the two forced him into his auto at gunpoint last Oct. 5 and threatened his wife and the baby unless he paid. Meade made arrangements to meet the men and then told police. The arrests followed.

NEW ENGLAND'S POLITICAL POT STARTS BOILING BREW FOR 1940

Election-year political pots had begun boiling in New England centers today, a process that will continue until it's all over but the shouting next November.

In New Hampshire Republican leaders, at the opening of filings for delegates to the Republican and Democratic national conventions, got aboard the bandwagon of Sen. H. Styles Bridges, who seeks the G. O. P. nomination.

At Concord, N. H., too, the first Democratic candidate for delegate to file pledged himself for a third term for President Roosevelt.

He was Rudolph G. Cartier, 37, of Rochester, N. H., a descendant of former joint-premier of Canada, George Etienne Cartier. Cartier is a former member of the New Hampshire Legislature and at present is a special student at the University of New Hampshire.

It is conceded that his pledge may have repercussions around the country, where others seeking to become delegates may be forced to declare themselves on the third-term issue before the President has announced whether he will run again.

MOSES BACKS BRIDGES

In the G. O. P. camp at Concord former U. S. Sen. George H. Moses and Judge William J. Britton, Republican state chairman filed for delegate-at-large and pledged their ballots to Sen. Bridges. Gov. Frank P. Murphy, a Bridges' supporter and Bridges himself also filed for the four delegate-at-large seats.

A contest was assured when Charles E. Carroll, Belknap County Comisioner also filed for delegate-at-large and friends declared that U. S. Sen. Charles W. Tobey soon would toss his hat in the ring.

Wilfred Chevrette, Democratic ward leader, at Manchester, indicated he would head a complete Garner-for-President slate.

In Massachusetts it was indicated that there would be a contest between now and the presidential primaries on April 30 unless Republican women would forego having a woman on the "big four" slate this year.

It had been expected that Mrs. Addison Green of Holyoke, member of the Republican national committee would rate a place among the "big four" but now it develops that John W. Haigis, candidate for governor in 1936 wants a place on the state.

In the interest of party unity, Republican leaders are hopeful that they may persuade Mrs. Green to consent to become a candidate from her congressional district.

MR. AND MRS. BUDDY CLARK
She's Foster-Daughter of Late Hotel Magnate

BUDDY CLARK'S WIFE MAY SHARE FORTUNE

There was considerable speculation in Boston radio circles today as to whether Mrs. Louise Dahl Clark, wife of "Buddy" Clark, Boston radio and movie singer, would share in the huge fortune of the late Ralph Hitz, New York hotel man.

Mrs. Clark, a relative of Mrs. Hitz, was Hitz's foster daughter and was brought up by the Hitz family.

Hitz, 48, who skyrocketed from hotel elevator operator to the presidency of a $100,000,000 hotel chain management that includes the big Hotel New Yorker, died of a series of heart attacks at a New York hospital last night.

His survivors include his widow, a son and his foster-daughter, Mrs. Clark, who eloped with the radio crooner in 1935 while attending Kendall Hall school, Pride's Crossing.

Estranged by her elopement, the young bride recently was reconciled with Hitz and returned to New York for a stay with her foster-parents, who adopted her when she was five years old.

Hitz was recognized as one of the youngest and most capable hotel officials in the country. Born in Vienna, Austria, in 1891 he rose from elevator boy at the famous Hotel Sacher there to managing director of the Hotel New Yorker, and to the presidency of the National Hotel Management Corporation.

During his career he was credited with introducing more innovations into the hotel business than any other man. Less than two years after his appointment as managing director of the New Yorker in 1929, he became head of the $100,000,000 hotel management chain in charge of hotels in Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati, Dayton, Minneapolis, Dallas and New York.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 13 (AP)—Word was received here today of the death in Pasadena, Cal., of Prof. Albert Deforest Palmer, 70, former chairman of the department of physics at Brown University and a teacher of physics at Brown for 41 years. He had been living in Pasadena since his retirement from Brown in 1934.

Auto Crash Sounds Police, Fire Alarms

Dana F. Allen of Montrose st., Arlington, escaped injury in Sullivan sq., Charlestown, today, although an automobile accident in which his car figured called out fire and police departments and two hospital ambulances.

Allen's skidding auto knocked down an electric light pole, a fire [illegible] signal box.

Ill for Week With a Corpse

EAST PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 13 (AP)—For nearly a week Mrs. Theresa Ciano, 80, lay helpless in bed beside her 84-year-old dead husband in their cold and squalid home until she was accidentally discovered by an errand boy this morning.

The boy broke in when his knock went unanswered. The woman was removed to a hospital. Physicians said her husband had died of natural causes. The couple was last seen on Sunday.

Girl's Leg Broken By Coaster's Sled

Losing control of his sled as he coasted down the street today, a boy crashed into Joan McNiff, 6 years old, as she stood in front of her home in Mt. Hope st., Roslindale.

The child, taken to City Hospital in a police ambulance, suffered a broken right leg.

TEST FOR NEW SUB

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Jan. 13 (AP)—Initial tests of the submarine Seawolf, latest undersea craft to be commissioned at the Portsmouth navy yard, will begin Monday, yard officials said today.

MONKEYS, GOLD ON 2 SHIPS

Odd news was made on Boston's waterfront recently when two vessels docked with cargoes of gold, monkeys, elephants and a strange beast known as a "cat bear" as well as stories of having been stopped by both British and German contraband patrols.

For the first time since Great Britain has been shipping gold bullion to America to establish credit for purchase of munitions, Boston police were sent to help guard a fortune in gold bars.

GOLD SEALED IN

At request of the skipper of the American freighter West Cuseta, which arrived from Calcutta, Boston police sent two plainclothesmen to stand guard with six private officers over what was declared to be a quarter of a million dollars in gold bars.

Revealing additional precautions, the freighter's crew said the gold was sealed behind a welded door that only a blow torch could open. Previously, as much as $5,000,000 in gold has passed through Boston ports, en route to New York, but no such precautions had been taken.

The West Cusetta also had aboard an animal "with the face of a panda, the body of a bear and the tail of a fox," as the crew described it. Unable to identify the animal, they termed it a "cat bear."

ELEPHANT DIES AT SEA

The beast is being shipped to a circus in Kansas, along with three baby elephants. One elephant died during the 47-day trip.

Also succumbing were 100 of the original 1000 monkeys which are being transported to the Rockefeller Foundation for scientific experimentations.

The crew of the Danish freighter Svanhild, which docked at Charlestown with a cargo of 2700 tons of wood pulp, reported being seized by the German contraband patrol, held four weeks in Kiel and Hamburg and later stopped and held four days by a British destroyer.

The vessel took more than two months to make the trip from Sweden.

Dad, Son, Dog Days With Liquor, Court

The dog, the drinks and the policeman's hat brought Healey and son to grief in Roxbury District Court today.

Act one was Thursday when Patrolman John Mullahy went to a Parker Hill ave., Roxbury, dwelling to investigate a drunken brawl. He said he found John J. Healey, 20, intoxicated, with his father, John P. Healey, 53, not intoxicated, and a collie "Lassie."

Mullahy arrested young Healey. "Lassie" got the officer's hat and reduced it to pulp. Healey paid $5 fine for drunkenness.

Act two was yesterday when the elder Healey arrived in court to answer a charge of harboring a dangerous animal.

The elder Healey this time was unable to testify because he was drunk, police said. Judge Frankland W. Miles locked him up for the night.

Act three was today when Judge Miles fined the elder Healey $5 for drunkenness, $10 for harboring a dangerous animal and $5 for Officer Mullahy's hat.

4 Saved by Ladders At Fire in Lowell

LOWELL, Jan. 13 (AP) — Four persons escaped from second floor windows over ladders raised by neighbors today when fire damaged the home of Edward Harris on the outskirts of the city. The damage was estimated unofficially at $3500.

Harris, his wife and two children used the ladders to reach safety.

PARDON PROBE BOARD SEEKS 4 INDICTMENTS

The special legislative commission investigating pardons and paroles in Massachusetts has "cracked down" on several allegcd recalcitrant witnesses charged with blocking the program of their probe, it was learned today.

It was revealed that the commission was closeted with the Essex County grand jury during the week seeking indictment of at least four persons on perjury charges.

The Essex case is said to center round the pardoning by former Governor James M. Curley in 1932 of Maurice Limon of Peabody, who was freed after serving 13 months of a five-year sentence for arson. He later committed suicide.

Although members of the commission are pledged to secrecy about their activities of the past week it is known they were with the Essex County Grand Jury Tuesday and Wednesday and perjury indictments when the jury reports next week will not surprise the probers.

This procedure was followed successfully in the case of former Rep. Frank Ryan of Somerville, who finally revealed that $1000 of $1500 he received in connection with a pardon case was paid by him to Atty. Daniel H. Coakley, Jr., son of a member of the governor's council.

At the time of Limon's suicide there were persistent rumors that he had been the victim of demands for money ever since his release from prison. He had claimed a loss of $450,000 from insurance companies as a result of the fire for which he was convicted, but settled for $139,000.

Only 720 of 5559 Pass Police Tests

Only 720 of the 5559 men who took the recent mental test for police passed, according to a statement today by Ulysses J. Lupien, director of the state civil service commission.

Those who passed are now taking physical examinations and eligible lists will be made known in April.

Stolen Carvings Recovered in Salem

Rare wood carvings, missing for three years since the historic Hawkes house was purchased by the city of Salem, were returned to the structure today, after they were located in a Danvers garage by Salem and Danvers police.

The Danvers garage man said he bought the pieces from a Salem resident. The carvings were done by Samuel McIntire, who designed and executed doorways, staircases and paneling for many of Salem's famous old residences.

LYNN MOTHER WARNS U. S. AGAINST WAR PROPAGANDA

Subversive activities and sabotage by aliens are constantly at work in this country to lure us into war, a Lynn mother, whose son is a navy officer, warned today and she urged eternal vigilance.

MICKEY WEAVES A CHARM—With eyes in the clouds, Beverly Roach, co-ed at Chicago Northwestern University, moons over the visit of Movie Actor Mickey Rooney to her sorority . . . 'n' how Mickey singled her out for his attentions.

Mrs. Myrtle P. Caru of 15-A West Baltimore st., Lynn, not only sent her pledge card in as a member of the National Legion of Mothers which seeks to keep the United States out of Europe's war, but she patriotically asked for 50 additional cards in order to recruit other mothers in her neighborhood.

The spirit and enthusiasm exhibited by Mrs. Caru is what has made the Legion of Mothers such a powerful influence and qualifies her as a Patrol Mother.

"We MUST and WILL keep our boys here in America," writes Mrs. Caru, "and not send them to Europe to be slaughtered like rats in trenches and on ships. I firmly believe we can keep this country out of war IF ALL THE AMERICAN MOTHERS JOIN HANDS and resolve to keep America neutral and safe for Americans. But we must be constantly on the alert for enemies within, against their propaganda and sabotage.

"Please send me 50 pledge cards. I will canvass my neighborhood for members for the Legion of Mothers."

Mrs. Blanche Bond of West Nottingham, N. H.:

"I am anxious to start a unit of the Legion of Mothers in our town. I am sure our women agree with the mothers and daughters of the nation who seek to keep the United States at peace. I have two sons and two sons-in-law who would have to go if our country was again lured into war. The last World War was a big blunder.

"We were all assured at that time that after it was over there would be no more wars; that we would reign in peace forever after. I say we should not enter this war or any war, and that if war is unavoidable, we keep our American men on this side of the ocean to protect our own shores and our American homes. To send our boys across to fight Europe's war would be folly."

Mrs. Winthrop Benson, Wareham st., Middleboro:

"In the interest of my three sons, all of military age, I would like to become a member of the Legion of Mothers. I shall be proud, though, to give my boys to our country, but not to foreign countries."

Mrs. Beansohel, 41 Marginal st., Lowell:

"I pledge to avoid sending our American soldiers to fight on foreign soil; to support adequate national defense and to fight any attempt to destroy the American form of government. I have two sons that will gladly fight for our country but not for any foreign cause."

Mrs. Hagnan, 14 Dewse st., Everett:

The Western Union has a "pep message" form that we like. Without doubt one of the most obliging institutions in the world the Western Union has gone to a lot of trouble preparing ready-made messages appropriate to all kinds of events—marriages, births, christenings, wedding anniversaries, holiday greetings.

If you are in a hurry or too greatly agitated to devise words of your own, you can step up to a desk and find a file of the various forms, some in technicolor.

Each message is numbered. You pick out one to your fancy, indicate it by a check mark against the number, write in the name and address of the party to whom you wish to send it, hand it to the operator with the fee, and that is all there is to it.

This system was devised by a genius of the telegraph company partly as a public convenience, but more as an economic measure.

This genius had observed the enormous waste incurred at Western Union desks in the number of pencils chewed up by message senders who could not get themselves in the mood for composition without eating a couple of Fabers, Dixons or Eberhards down to the roots.

The genius also noted the loss to the company in the blanks on which the message senders would start to write, then crumple up and throw away, taking another blank for a fresh start. Computing the number of crumpled blanks at eight or 10 to every one completed and handed in to the operator, it will be seen that the despoilation of paper must have been quite an item to the company.

The ready-made message business has eliminated much of this loss.

Recently we sent a message of congratulation to a newly married couple, both somewhat noted for their speedy tempers.

In the interests of time-saving, we dashed into a Western Union office, made a grab for the marriage message rack, got what we thought was a blank belonging to that department, indicated the very first message on it and dispatched it, and blithely went our way.

A certain coolness on the part of the newly-weds when we met up with them later led to our discovery of the "pep message."

It seems we inadvertently got hold of one of those blanks and instead of the flowery felicitations that we thought we were sending, what the happy couple received from us was:

"Win or lose, we are with you."

It seems that the "pep message" forms are designed for football enthusiasts who may wish to send words of encouragement and cheer to football coaches, individual players, or teams as a whole.

The all-time greatest "pep message," is the line a devoted mother sent to her gladiator son.

She was the mother of Champion Joe Gans, tawny, scrawny, plain-tive looking lightweight champion of the world away back down the years.

Gans was awaiting the gong for a battle in defense of his title against a strip of whalebone in human form called Battling Nelson out in Goldfield, Nevada.

The fight was for the unheard of purse for little men of $30,000 and had attracted world wide attention.

From Baltimore, where Joe had been an humble oyster shucker, over the wires to the distant mining camp, came the motherly message that was to take permanent place in the American language:

"Bring home the bacon, Joe."

These famed children have changed a lot since you've seen them last. They're still very much alike. But they are growing up.

Soon they'll join their parents in a big house built for all the family. But that's in the future. To date they're under the care of Dr. Dafoe and their nurses.

The pictures you'll shortly see show life in Quintland and many other interesting things revealed as Dr. Dafoe is able to tell one sister from another.

Don't miss this unusual

YOU'VE HEARD a lot about China, its war, misery and poverty. You've wondered no doubt whether all the things that have shocked you can be true.

For that reason, you will find tomorrow's story from China particularly interesting and informative. The writer is Mrs. Hugh Deane, Jr., the former Courtney "Toni" Wilson of Wellesley College.

In letters addressed to her mother in Jamaica Plain, Mrs. Deane reveals what she and her husband witnessed as they traveled to Hong Kong by way of Indo-China.

One of her most gripping tales is the account of her experience during the bombing of Nanning.

Look for the first of Mrs. Deane's letters in the Advertiser's GREEN MAGAZINE.

WILL ANOTHER MAN from Massachusetts occupy the White House? Can we expect a successor to the late Calvin Coolidge?

Many believe we can.

That is why Austen Lake, noted feature writer and sports commentator, spent a day this week with Congressman Joseph W. Martin, the much-discussed probable candidate for the presidency who is frequently mentioned as "The Darkest Dark Horse."

You'll like the story Mr. Lake writes for the GREEN MAGAZINE, because he gives you inside facts about the popular law-maker's career and carefully considers his chances for election to the nation's highest office.

YOU WILL FIND an abundance of interesting and illuminating articles in the GREEN MAGAZINE.

There is "Murder at Breakheart Hill," a story of a famous crime near North Saugus that stirred all New England four decades ago.

There is a lively account of the brilliant career of Tom Qualters, formerly Massachusetts state trooper, selected by President Roosevelt as his personal bodyguard.

There is last-minute news of the stage, screen and music, delightfully written and expertly illustrated.

And sparkling columns by Walter Winchell, George Holland, other well-known writers.

THE AMERICAN WEEKLY, nation's most widely read magazine which is distributed with the Sunday Advertiser, will interest every member of your family.

Aleko E. Lilius, the intrepid adventurer and roving correspondent, describes a weird trip among the dwindling witch-doctors of Africa and makes startling revelations about their savage sorcery and mystifying magic.

George F. Worts continues his stirring new novel, "Laughing Girl" and tells her exciting experiences on a dangerous mission.

Irmie Johnson, renowned authority on scientific subjects, relates science's latest attempts to ease the tension of modern living and, among other things, discloses ways to quiet the housewife's strained nerves, make the tired business man less tired, and keep so many policemen from killing themselves.

A page devoted to "1939's queerest accidents" shows how a farmer was electrocuted by a bucket of water, a boy was shot by a falling pear, a bicyclist looped-the-loop to the top of an automobile, a child was suffocated in a refrigerator while playing hide-and-seek, and a woman's hair was set on fire by the sun.

Seeking information about "That Hot Husband, Arthur Bugs" Rice interviews Virginia Cassard, a much-married woman who knows the blues and reports an amusing conversation.

Creative Minds Focused on War

Creative minds in the realm of science and invention have been trying to keep the human race ahead in the contest with catastrophe!

New economies, new methods, and new techniques are perpetually being brought forward to offset mistakes made by private management, on the one hand, and by wasteful and demagogic politicians, on the other.

How rich and abundant men's liver would be if the full fruits of the power age were converted into making more and better goods! How typical families could add to their array of comfort goods if production and distribution generally were conducted as efficiently as our best managed companies now operate.

But there are in the real world important net deductions from recorded progress.

FROM ANY BROAD humanitarian standpoint, the war in Europe is the outstanding folly of the period. Its cost is being borne by the people of belligerent countries who in a program of rationing are measurably lowering their standards of living. With great candor, Prime Minister Chamberlain in his recent address pointed out that in order to release supplies for military purposes it was not enough for well-to-do civilians to cut down on luxuries, but that the great multitude of poor and moderately circumstanced people also had to reduce their consumption.

MARS STANDS on the frontier of science, and snatches from the laboratories many of the benefits of creative investigation.

In summing up the extent of scientific progress in the last year, Dr. William A. Hamor, associate director of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Progress at Pittsburgh, revealed:

"A trend of vast purport during the year was toward the utilization of plastics by the armed forces of every major nation. Military applications of plastics, definite and potential, include not only the use of laminated materials in airplane construction, cast resins in guide lines on airplane carriers and luminescent resins in various military devices, but also the utilization of tinted cellulose acetate window for airraid protection, and the fabrication of gun stocks from cellulose acetate and from fabric-filled phenolic resins.

"Other plastic developments were the employment of shaped cellulose acetate sheet as a chute for conveying ammunition belts from ammunition boxes to machine guns for use in airplanes, the molding of mouthpieces and containers for gas masks from phenolic resins, the use of such a plastic as 'koroseal' in gas masks for protection against mustard gas, the application of cellulose acetate in soldiers' goggles, the use of phenolics in the construction of the noses of antiaircraft shells, and the possible application of nylon as a parachute material."

THE FOREGOING is merely a sample of the manner in which war diverts science from its true objective of finding ways toward better living.

With all the governmental and private waste, the long trend over here has been in the direction of more per thing in exchange for work. The explanation lies in the remarkable efficiency of new style tools, which add enormously to the productivity of the human worker.

ACCORDINGLY, such salvation as lies ahead is tied up with further improvement of technology by industry, aided by science and invention. In the circumstances, political business baiting and excessive taxation which threaten the flow of capital into better tools strike at the very core of the hope for better times ahead.

ATLAS PLYWOOD DIVIDENDS SET

Directors of Atlas Plywood Corp. declared a dividend on the preferred stock of 31 cents per share, and a dividend on the common of 25 cents per share. Both dividends payable Feb. 1, to stock of record Jan. 20.

Stocks Close Mixed When Rally Fails

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 (AP)—Some stocks worked up a mild rallying temperature in today's market, but numerous issues failed to attract real buying heat.

Fractional gains were tacked on by leaders in early dealings. There was a slip-up in the final hour and about the best that could be said for the list at the close was that prices were moderately irregular.

Transfers for the brief session approximated 450,000 shares.

Initial improvement, generally, was attributed by brokerage circles mainly to the belief of some that, with the wiping out of virtually all of the September war-boom bulge, the market might be in a position to retrace a portion of the trail.

Bonds and commodities were uneven.

American Woolen preferred jumped about 3 points at one time in the wake of the company's announcement of a payment of $3 per share on this issue's arrearages.

Occasional resistance was displayed by Loft, International Mercantile Marine, U. S. Rubber, General Electric and Anaconda.

Inclined to lag were Westinghouse, U. S. Steel, Douglas Aircraft, Union Carbide, duPont, Western Union, Montgomery Ward, Texas Corp., Santa Fe and American Telephone.

Steels had to contend with a forecast of a drop in next week's mill operations in addition to indications backlogs were being eaten into at a faster rate than had been looked for at the end of the year.

F.D.R.'S '41 BUDGET CUTS SEEN FALSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (INS)—President Roosevelt's 1941 budget was branded today by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce as "misleading" and a "confession of weakness" on the part of the Executive.

The chamber released an analysis of the budget made by Dr. Fred R. Fairchild, Yale economic professor, shortly after Edward O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, took his fight to Congress for $807,000,000 additional in farm benefit payments.

O'Neal told the House Appropriations Agriculture sub-committee that it would cost $607,000,000 to give parity prices to the five basic crops, cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco and rice. He asked $100,000,000 for non-basic commodities and $100,000,000 of customs receipts to subsidize exports of farm products.

The chamber fixed the 1941 budget at $9,027,000,000, in contrast to the $8,424,000,000 figure presented to Congress by President Roosevelt, and said that, judging from the past three sessions, $11,000,000,000 will be appropriated this year.

CALLED MISLEADING

"The estimates are misleading in that they appear to foreshadow some slight decrease in expenditures, although the experience of recent years with budget estimates clearly suggests that no reduction is likely to come," Dr. Fairchild said.

"In support of this opinion, it is to be noted that in the past three completed years the actual expenditures were, on the average, $2,000,000,000 more than the estimates originally proposed.

"On such a basis the proposed $9,027,000,000 would, before the year is completed, become $11,000,000,000.

"As it is, the proposed expenditure for the next year actually exceeds by some $30,000,000 the estimate for the current year that was submitted last January."

ESTIMATES "VALUELESS"

Dr. Fairchild said budget estimates had become valueless because the President has sent up supplemental estimates in the past. He predicted this year would be "no exception."

"It is a confession of weakness when the executive indicates inability to meet the demands of the public for a material reduction in the volume of expenditures," Dr. Fairchild asserted.

He said the means are available for the President to cut expenditures 25 per cent, or by $1,800,000,000 which would bring the budget to within $300,000,000 of revenue estimates.

Attacking the President's $460,000,000 new tax proposal, Dr. Fairchild said the money would not be earmarked for national defense but would be put into the general fund of the treasury.

He said that any new taxes would further deter business.

POWER FIRMS TO EXPAND

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—In 1941 the private and municipal electric light and power companies in the United States plan to spend $605,000,000 on new construction, according to the Electric World. This is the largest electric utility budget since 1930 and is 41 per cent more than in 1939.

NURMI AID FOR FINNS SEEN HERE

New England Finns rejoiced today at the news that Paavo Nurmi and Taisto Maeki, famous Finnish runners were coming to the United States soon to take part in a sports exhibition and collect money for Finland.

Hope was expressed here that the famous runners would come to Boston, where Numi has appeared several times in the past.

It was announced that an edition of 6400 expensive copies of a book by Baron Mannerheim will be published here, the proceeds to go to the Finnish war fund.

Contributions to the Finnish Relief Fund are still being received by the Daily Record, Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser. Send your contribution to Finnish Relief Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All contributions will be promptly acknowledged and forwarded.

Navy Flier Dies As 5 Survive

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 13 (AP)—One naval aviator was killed in an airplane collision above barren Borego Valley, 87 miles northeast of here, and early today the last of the five survivors reached civilization.

James Addison Crowson, radioman first-class, was unable to escape from his plane before it crashed, and his body, with the parachute fastened on, was found in the wreckage.

The survivors parachuted out and reached help separately, after hiking miles through the desert.

Nevadans Lead in Paid-Up HOLC Loans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—The Home Owners Loan Corp. reported today that one in ten borrowers in the Pacific Coast region had paid off his mortgage in full.

Nevadans led the country, with 16 per cent of loans fully repaid.

The only Eastern state to challenge the Western mark was New Hampshire, with 13 per cent of loans cancelled.

His Marriage Surprises Him

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 13 (AP)—Courthouse clerks are as puzzled over this letter as, apparently, the young Pennsylvania miner who wrote it.

He asked them to check on a marriage "that was to of taken place April 14, 1937," saying:

"I have no knowledge of ever being married, but if I am, please let me know, and send me the marriage license."

Clerks assured him he had taken out a license and, furthermore, had been married the same day.

BOSTON MAN LINKED IN COTTON 'SCHEME'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—The Commodity Credit Corporation reported today that it had uncovered a "fantastic scheme" of a Boston man to "victimize" New England warehousemen who might be awarded government-owned cotton for storage.

The corporation, in a formal release, said that the man, whose name was withheld, was endeavoring to procure, or had procured, an agreement from a group of New England warehousemen under which he would receive 10 per cent of the net proceeds they might obtain from storage of government cotton.

Under legislation enacted last year, the government is directed to transfer from the South some of its cotton to cotton manufacturing centers of New England for storage. The amount which may be transferred is not to exceed 300,000 bales.

The man was said to have based his request for such an agreement upon a representation that he had put through Congress the legislation directing this transfer.

"In order to protect warehousemen from being victimized by such a fantastic scheme," said Carl B. Robbins, president, "the corporation wishes to make it clear that any cotton moved to New England for storage under the provisions of public law No. [illegible] allocated among warehouses on the basis of competitive bids.

"These bids are to be requested from all persons having warehousing facilities for cotton. No storage contract will be entered into with any warehouseman who is under an agreement to pay any person a fee on government business."

New Theater For Brighton

Construction of the new Circle Theater in Cleveland Circle, Brighton, will start at once, officials of the M. & P. Theaters Corp. announced today.

Final plans and specifications call for a modern movie house with de luxe interior appointments, fireproofed and with air conditioning, Krokyn and Browne, Boston architects, said.

The M. & P. Theaters operates the Metropolitan, Paramount and Fenway theaters in Boston, the Capitol in Allston, the Paramount in Newton and others.

'G. W. T. W.' Stays Fifth Week

MOST DISCUSSED ROLE in years is that of Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind" and Vivien Leigh is the girl who plays her. The enormously popular David O. Selznick production is being held over a fifth week at Loew's State and Orpheum.

Hollywood Paragraphs

—By LOUELLA O. PARSONS—

EN ROUTE TO HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 13—Gary Cooper, not George Brent, gets the top male role in "Northwest Mounted Police" and now, along with Cecil B. DeMille and Paramount, I hope that this is the final announcement.

The negotiations to borrow George Brent from Warners fell through at the last minute and when Para found Gary Cooper would finish "The Westerner" in time, not a minute was lost making the deal with Sam Goldwyn to borrow him.

Don't stop me even if you've heard this before the signing of Gary rounds out the stellar cast including Madeleine Carroll, Joel McCrea and Robert Preston. Incidentally the deal to get Simone Simon for the French Canadian girl is still very much on the fire.

• • •

Speaking of C. B. DeMille—disaster met his gaze when he saw the result of the recent rainstorm at Paradise, his fabulously luxurious estate where many of the celebrities of the world have been entertained from time to time.

When he arrived at the ranch he found the last bridge had been washed away. Two concrete dams were out, both swimming pools destroyed, the stone guest house was crushed under an avalanche and whole orchards had been washed out.

But what worried C. B. more than anything else was the loss and damage to some of his most prized "souvenirs," including the costume worn by Geraldine Farrar in his "Joan the Woman" and the beautiful imported silks worn by Claudette Colbert in "The Sign of the Cross."

Italian Feature at Hanover St. Casino

Fascinating Isa Miranda is starred in "Scipione Africano," spectacular Italian picture celebrating the exploits of the famous warrior who led the Roman army against Hannibal. It is now showing on the screen of the Casino Theater on Hanover st. Highspotting the second Punic War, this made-in-Italy production has for it male leads Annibale Ninchi and Camillo Pilotto.

Extra Days' Seat Sale on Monday

"Gone With the Wind," which is continuing to set new holdover records in the first seven first-run key cities to play it, will run for a fifth week, starting next Thursday, at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters.

Seats for this fifth week will go on sale at both State and Orpheum box-offices at 10 a. m. Monday.

At the State Theater, there are two showings daily, at 1:30 and 8 p. m., with all seats reserved.

At the Orpheum, the picture is continuous all day, there being 3000 unreserved seats available for the matinee performances at 10:45 a. m. and 2:45 p. m. Patrons may reach the theater any time after 10 a. m. and see a complete show. For the 8 p. m. and Sunday performances, all seats are reserved.

Fans and reviewers alike are agreed that no one but the British actress, Vivian Leigh, could have portrayed Scarlett O'Hara so beautifully.

Incidentally, M-G-M's share in these first seven engagements on "Gone With the Wind" is expected to be approximately $1,000,000. Of this amount, 50 per cent goes to Producer David O. Selznick, as it is understood producer and distributor split 50-50 on the 70 per cent of the gross. The million-dollar prediction is based on current business, which is said to have no equal in the history of the industry.

Nicolai Malko Guest Conductor

Shostakovitch's First Symphony will be presented at the next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening Boston Symphony concerts in Symphony Hall by Nicolai Malko, guest conductor and the conductor who led the first performance of this work at Leningrad in 1926. Rossini's overture to "La Gazza Ladra" will open the program.

The second portion will include Max Reger's orchestral "Variations on a Theme of Mozart" and Tchaikovsky's "Italian" capriccio.

Ford Hall Players To Present Drama

The Ford Hall Forum Players will present "Awake and Sing," the Clifford Odets folk drama that enjoyed a six month Broadway engagement, Thursday evening at the Barn Theater on Joy st. It will be repeated on Friday and Saturday evenings. Miss Lillian Arnold is the director.

EXPERIMENT CURED HAYES AIDE--RICE SHOW HERE MONDAY

Evelyn Varden Learned Lesson

One of the biggest laughs in "Ladies and Gentlemen," the comedy co-starring Helen Hayes and Philip Merivale, coming to the Colonial for two weeks beginning Jan. 22, comes when Evelyn Varden makes an entrance with her face covered with beauty cream. Everything is stark white except her eyes and mouth, and she looks like something that would set Karloff gibbering.

Well, it seems that when that particular scene is over Miss Varden has exactly 20 minutes in which to make a change and it always used to take her at least half that time to scrape off the white grease paint that she used to simulate beauty cream.

Why not, Miss Varden asked herself, try something that came of a little easier? So one afternoon as an experiment, she got some vanishing cream and slapped it on. It looked perfect and could be taken off in less than half a minute. Very proud of her discovery, the actress took some of the stuff to the theater that night.

Came the time for her to whiten her face. She blithely began to put on the vanishing cream—and then discovered, to her terror, that it actually did vanish when it was used over a cold cream base. Frantically she piled on more—that disappeared too.

Then, hearing her cue, she simply scooped up two big handfuls of greasepaint, which fortunately happened to be handy, smeared them on her face, and bolted out onto the stage, with the greasepaint clinging to her in small tufts. "I looked," she said, "like an inexpertly iced cake."

As a final blow, in the middle of the scene a large hunk of paint which had been teetering on one of her eyebrows dropped plunk into her eye, almost blinding her. Somehow she managed to stagger over to a bed (where she was supposed to be at that point in the action, lay down and said her line, and then began to pray for the curtain to come down. Never again will she do any experimenting. What, never? No, never!

BETTY FIELD, co-starring with John Craven, in a huddle with Scene Designer Jo Mielziner, and Author-Director Elmer Rice as "Two on an Island" prepares to open at the Wilbur Monday night.

Globe's Show Pleases Fans

The stunning and sinous dancer, Renee, is the major attraction at the Globe Burlesque Theater, where she heads the current week's traveling road burlesque show.

Sharing oomph honors at the Globe are Frances White, Olive Sharron and Lenore Jackson, to mention just a few of the bevy of charmers.

Bringing with them a new deal in roustabout comedy are Joe De Rita, Garret Price, Frank Scannell, Eddie Haywood, Williams and Dee, Harry Ryan and Irving Benson. The ensemble dances are capably presented by a chorus of 30.

'First Concerto' By Menuhin

Yehudi Menuhin, in his Symphony Hall concert tomorrow afternoon, will be the first virtuoso within easy recollection to play Wieniawski's melodious "First Concerto" in Boston.

His complete program follows: Sonata in A major, Franck; Sonata No 2 in A minor (for violin alone), Bach; First Concerto in F sharp minor, Opus 14, Wieniawski; Kaddish (Hebrew Prayer), Ravel; Caprice Basque, Sarasate. The Maid With Flaxen Hair, Debussy-Hartman, and LaSorsa's (approx.) Locatelli.

Dr. I. Q. at Met Again Monday Night

Dr I. Q. makes his second personal appearance [illegible] from the Metropolitan Theatre Monday evening. A radio-to-stage pick-up following and written broadcast, first to be conducted in Boston, revealed that the national radio audience was keenly impressed by the New Dr. I. TOO BUSY TO WORK

Modern Glamour Girls

By George Clarke

". . . Glamour to some comes naturally . . ."

GLAMOUR in Boston is, for the most part, of the olden time . . . when mansion after mansion was built on Beacon Hill, and later along the made land which is the Beacon st. of today, overlooking the Charles River basin.

And it was a time of carriages and footmen, of liveried butlers, of formal teas and receptions, and of concerts and theater parties. It was a time when big parties were held in the stately old houses, with their music rooms, and drawing rooms, and formal parlors.

It was a time when there was a separate bar for the coachmen behind the Somerset, and while the master and mistress and their children danced in the great ballrooms the coachmen had a time for himself in the bar below, with the tab going onto his master's check . . . and, if the truth be told, there were nights when master and servant were guided home by the good sense of the horses.

Almost everyone must have kept horses in those days. At least it would seem so from the block after block of stables which still are standing behind the old mansions. Some of them are studios and flats now, where dwell artists, writers and dancers.

Proud beauties went forth from Boston then to become famed in the capitals of all the world, and some of them still are.

But this series is about more modern days—days when many mansions are shuttered, or turned into rooming houses—and the socially-elect have spread themselves out over the countryside, from Gloucester to the Cape; from Chestnut Hill to Worcester . . . for such has been the power of the motor car.

Each year, however, there have been glamorous beauties, and this article will be devoted to two of them, chosen almost at random, as a sort of preliminary to the final article of the series, set for Monday, in which an effort will be made to name the glamour girls of now, the lovely young things of the debutante crop.

PRINCE (INSERT) AND PRINCESS CANTACUZENE

She Was Boston's Clarissa Curtis

TODAY'S two glamour girls are, by their maiden names, Francesca Braggiotti and Clarissa Curtis names which will long be remembered.

The first, talented dancer, a professional, really, is married and living happily with George Cabot Lodge, a grandson of the late Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, helping him with his ambition to become a great motion picture actor. The second, the No. 1 glamour girl of her day, is dead, a suicide.

The Braggiottis are an amazing family. Originally, there were four girls and four boys, all talented, some brilliant.

Their father is Isadore Braggiotti, originally of Florence, Italy, and a noted vocal teacher and coach. Their mother was the former Lily Schlesinger of Brookline. They lived in Florence, where most of the children were born, until Mrs. Braggiotti died when the father returned to Boston, and to Brookline, with the children.

SALLY CLARK M'LANAHAN

Set Glamour Pattern

Berthe, the oldest, now dead, Francesca and Gloria were all dancers. Mario, a great piano player, was the most talented of the boys. The two oldest girls, Berthe and Francesca, opened a dancing studio here, and, upon occasion, made tours of the country both in concerts and in vaudeville. Berthe died a few years ago, and the partnership was broken up.

But Francesca continued with Gloria, and of dancing, as an aid to glamour, she said:

"Dancing is the greatest of all aids to feminine beauty. It teaches one grace above all things, and what woman is beautiful without that?"

Some of the other beauty hints she gave to friends included an adjuration to go barefoot as much as possible, and she urged them to sit on the floor rather than on chairs, pointing out that so can true relaxation be achieved, and she told them all to breathe deeply.

"A woman," she said "can positively build new body lines. Artists say that the most beautiful line is that between the armpit and the hip—and how can that be beautiful if layers of fat are in the way.

"Women should stand erect to acquire correct posture. Let them place thgir hands on their hips, throw the shoulders back and down, and lift the diaphram. Then flatten and contract the muscles of the abdomen and hips, and keep them so."

And of glamour generally, she says:

"Every girl possesses something different from any other girl, and she may cultivate it and capitalize it if she chooses. To all girls my advice is: 'Be yourself.' This is easy to say, but may seem hard of accomplishment.

"It really isn't . . ."

When Francesca married young Dodge she retired from professional dancing, but Gloria has carried on. Mario has become famed all over the country, first as a member of the 2-piano team of Fray and Braggiotti, and secondly as the head of an orchestra.

Truly an amazing family, and amazing girls.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN DAVIS LODGE

She Was Francesca Braggiotti

THE engagement of Clarissa Curtis to young Prince Michel Cantacuzene back in 1921 caused great excitement in Boston's most exclusive circles.

He had been a student at Harvard, after having spent his early years at the Court of Czar Nicholas in St. Petersburg, and her brother, Thomas J. Curtis, was a classmate. They met at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pelham Curtis on Beacon st., in the Back Bay.

The young prince's mother was Julia Dent Grant, a grand-daughter of President Ulysses S. Grant, the hero-general of the Civil War. Her father was Gen. Frederick Dent Grant.

After her marriage to the prince's father she went to Russia with him where her son was born and where, because of her relationship to the ex-president, hers was a greater social position than that her husband could give to her—for to the Russians the President of the United States was as much a ruler of the country as was their own Czar.

The marriage was one of the most brilliant ever staged in Boston, and the young prince took his bride away with him to Chicago where she became the mother of two children, Irina, 13, and Rodion, 10. Then, in 1935, they were divorced, the prince obtaining the decree at Waukegan, Ill., on grounds of desertion, which, under Illinois law, means she must have separated from him at least two years before. He was given custody of the children, and gallantly told the court:

"I have no complaint against my wife. She treated me very well. But we are separated."

The last act of the drama was enacted last September under mysterious circumstances in a small apartment in the Greenwich Village district in New York City . . . A district frequented by artists and writers.

The princess, ill, alone, and apparently without much money, was found in the apartment, seated on a chair in the kitchen. Two gas jets were open on the kitchen stove.

PRINCESS IRINA AND PRINCE RODION

Thomas Curtis, her brother, could give no reason for her act. She had, he said, been engaged in settlement work, in which she was deeply interested.

There have, as stated before, been many glamour girls in Boston since these two held away—Sally Clark, for instance, now Mrs. George McLanahan, and her sister, Ann, married to John Roosevelt . . . And there will be more in the future.

For glamour is without date.

(Boston glamour girls of today, who they are, and why they are glamorous, will be explained in Monday's concluding installment of this series . . . Read Monday's Evening American.)

DISCLOSURE that high American naval authorities do not look with favor on the proposed construction of super-battleships of sixty to eighty thousand tons indicates good judgment in that important quarter.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, has informed the House Naval Affairs Committee that while current studies "indicate ships in the future of somewhat larger tonnage," there is no disposition to go to the fantastic lengths proposed.

The big battleships now in the navies of the world NEVER SEEM TO BE IN ANY ENGAGEMENTS, and would thus appear to be more or less useless.

It would be an utter absurdity to build still bigger and costlier and more useless battleships.

As Chairman Vinson of the House Committee said, to put so huge a part of the whole naval appropriation in one enormous ship would be to "put all your eggs in one basket."

Admiral Stark also very effectively pointed out that in addition to the probable uselessness of super-dreadnaughts, they would be INCAPABLE OF PASSAGE THROUGH THE PANAMA CANAL AND WOULD BE INCAPABLE OF BEING CARED FOR BY MOST OF THE EXISTING HARBOR FACILITIES.

The United States does not have so much money for national defense that it can afford to waste money in ineffective categories.

American naval authorities should be relied upon for able direction of defense spending in order to provide the United States with a maximum of protection at a minimum of expense.

There is no need for guesswork with instruments of national defense, particularly in the naval establishment.

The present European war provides a great proving ground for naval warfare, and makes very clear the types of craft and weapons which are the most useful as well as those which prevailing methods of warfare render either obsolete or idle.

And if Britain is winning the present naval war, it is certainly NOT DOING IT WITH BIG SHIPS, which are either locked up in safe harbors or kept far at sea out of harm's way.

THE MINE TRAGEDY at Bartley, West Virginia, profoundly shocks the nation, hopeful to the last that some of the entombed men might have been saved.

This is by no means the worst disaster of its kind. The fatal trapping of 361 miners at Monongah, also in West Virginia, on December 6, 1907, and of 263 at Dawson, New Mexico, on October 22, 1913, were probably more horrible.

But comparisons cannot be helpful in the face of such a catastrophe as this.

Better would be a universal determination to prevent so far as humanly possible a repetition of the loss and suffering.

That means increased responsibility and vigilance not only among the owners of mines, but also by the men who work in them.

There is consolation in the knowledge that coal mine mortality in recent years has averaged only about half of what it was in the World War period.

Today it requires fewer men fewer hours to produce a given quantity of coal. From 1915 to 1937, the number of man-hours worked at the nation's mines was reduced to 49.8 per cent, and the number of men killed dropped 42.5 per cent.

At the same time, the fatality rate per million man-hours went down from 1.722 to 1.673—a reduction of more than 3 per cent.

And yet the average miner produced 43 per cent more coal per hour.

With such a record of progress, there is hope that Twentieth Century ingenuity will eventually overcome the menace of escaping gas and cave-ins, principal causes of death in present-day coal mining.

BROAD "A'S" irk Mrs. Elisabeth von Hesse, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's voice teacher.

According to the Associated Press, this distinguished authority "tossed 'cawn't' and 'bawth' out the window, along with New England broad 'a's', and said there was no place for them in the American language."

It is unfortunate that our Yankee tongue is so widely misunderstood.

Actually, 99 of every hundred New Englanders never say "cawn't" or "bawth."

Generally, we are quite satisfied with the English language, AS IT IS. And, almost without exception, we do our best to speak it in the American way.

We should not be blamed for the sins of the small minority, which affects culture by linguistic inventions and oral gymnastics.

Nor should anyone make the mistake of overlooking the highly pertinent fact that Noah Webster of dictionary fame was a native of Hartford, Ct.

Through him, the English language took out its American naturalization papers and became in a very large and true sense a NEW ENGLAND PRODUCT.

The Birches

LIKE ghostly sentinels they stand . . . haunting a scenic wonderland . . . a land of silence and of dreams . . . of crystal lakes and tumbling streams . . . pale phantoms, spirits of the woods . . . alone in the vast solitudes.

Or yet perchance, for none can tell . . . they may be brides, by magic spell . . . changed into trees—or nymphs surprised . . . by the approach of man; disguised . . . taking this form until they can . . . again dance to the pipes of Pan.

Human Side of News -1- By EDWIN C. HILL

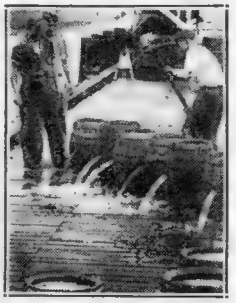
IN THE WEST FIFTIES the other day I passed the basement entrance of what was once a famous speakeasy. In the aperture at the side of the door, through which in well-remembered years the thirsty citizen was coldly appraised and identified, there was a rose geranium.

A little girl came running out and a moment later a comely matron in a kitchen apron appeared in the doorway and scolded the little girl for going out without her rubbers. "Come back here this instant and put on your rubbers!" Reluctantly, like spirited little girls everywhere, the child obeyed.

LIFE had gone on in the old brick house for generations, before that brief intermezzo in our sometimes dissonant symphony known as Prohibition, and here it was again, an old established firm.

Gone was the hard-eyed face from the little peep-hole window; gone were the gorillas and the gunmen, the furtive fixers, the friends of so-and-so, seeking nepenthe at the bottle's mouth, even fusel oil and formaldehyde.

But now life again beheves in life, a geranium glows in a pot



AFTER THE RAID
Agents Destroy Seized Liquor

and that little girl isn't going to be allowed to catch cold.

AS I WALKED on, it seemed to me that our heavy-duty thinkers ought to do a thorough post-mortem on our "noble experiment."

One more or less meandering thought is that the Prohibition era disclosed in our body politic an unsuspected capacity for resistance against the juggernaut state, against which Adam Smith warned us more than a century ago.

Could it be that our successful defiance of the Volstead Act was a work-out for a later stand against a much more dangerous tyranny than Bishop Cannon ever dreamed of?

Certainly the individual against the all-devouring state is a planetary issue today, and this is no preachment or sanction of anarchy.

The fact is that we did resist sumptuary legislation in which we had no belief, and that fact is possibly an augury of similar resistance against the lock-step of some kind of a strong-arm government in the future.

A famous English writer recently called us a nation of sheep. Perhaps he may yet be called upon to revise his conclusion.

JUST as in Shay's Rebellion and in many later encounters we have again made the state give heed to the ways of free men. If they ever do get the totalitarian ball and chain on us, I truly believe fundamental Americanism will assert itself.

Fuehrers, Gestapos and tyrant cannot crush the powerful and general determination to remain free on this side of the Atlantic.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -1- -1- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 — We went to a concert given by the National Symphony Orchestra. In the first part of the program, one of Strauss' compositions, which I had never heard before, was played. I was sorry not to hear the Brahms Symphony in F Major, for my guests who stayed on after I had to leave, said it was beautifully rendered.

I had to go to the broadcasting station where Mrs. Ellen Woodward and Miss Jane Hooey and I conversed together over the air at 10:15 p. m. on some of the changes in the Social Security Act. I am becoming increasingly conscious of the importance of this act in the lives of a great many people.

There will, of course, be more changes, for anything which touches so many people cannot remain static. Circumstances under which we live are constantly changing and therefore an act of this kind must change to meet new needs and new conditions.

A FRIEND of mine, who came to see me the other day, is very insistent that, sad as the war is, we in the United States are great travellers and will still be. Ordinarily most of our travelling has been in Europe, or in places which at present are not healthy for pleasure jaunts because of war activities.

Therefore, for the first time, we are probably going to make it a point not only to see our own United States, but to see many other places in North and South America.

My friend insists that this will mean the discovery by many people of beauties and interests which they never before realized.

"See Their Interesting Displays," Says First Lady

The celebrations which are to begin this spring in Arizona and New Mexico, should be of special interest to those who are interested in the first settlements in this country. We can also see many of our most interesting Indian tribes.

In many ways, we are trying to help these tribes to recapture some of their old arts and skills and to adapt them to modern use. At the same time, the nation will have to grow in knowledge and appreciation of the value of these Indian-made goods.

I hope, therefore, if the San Francisco World's Fair opens again next spring, more of our citizens will journey out there, where they may see the Indian courts, which were to me the most thrilling part of the Indian exhibit at the Fair.

SINCE JOBS are of necessity a matter of concern to our young college boys and girls, I was very much interested to receive from a girl who is studying journalism at Hunter College, New York city, the following information:

"The bureau of occupations at my college has formulated a plan whereby business and professional women in New York city, with a reasonable expenditure of time on their part, can help graduating students in choosing a career.

"Six metropolitan organizations with a total membership of over two thousand business and professional women, are co-operating on a program of career conferences which aim to acquaint graduating seniors with employment possibilities in New York city and to bring them in personal contact with workers in various fields."

This is a splendid idea and I hope it will be carried out in many of the colleges.

BOSTON After DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

IF MEMORY IS correct, the voice of the pee-pul was heard in a loud "aye" when the question was put (on the ballot) whether Massachusetts would have four more years of racing in Suffolk and Bristol Counties . . . Well, there'll be racing at Suffolk Downs next summer, and at Wonderland Park and Dighton . . . If U. S. Attorney Ed Brandon finds venality in the conduct of certain individuals' dealings with Mr. Brandon's boss, Mr. Whiskers, the blame does not seem to belong to the game.

THE SAME MR. BRANDON is making himself a potent—yes, and popular—figure in the realm of the law and its practitioners . . . Naturally, it isn't to be expected that the gentlemen who find the government prosecutor and his assistant, Henry M. Leen, lunging at them with what might be a death thrust—it isn't to be expected that these chappies should be around asking the Messrs. B. and L. for their autographs . . . All in all, 'though the talk you hear about Edmund B., is respectful and praise-y.

WE MAKE the mention fleetingly because veteran wanderers through the corridors of the courthouse and Barristers Hall are eyeing Mr. Brandon speculatively . . . Young but mature Democrats of talent and popularity are scarce—a chronic paucity . . . Unless the U. S. district attorney for the Boston district is wedded to the law, there are those who see him as excellent timber for very high office . . . In case it ever becomes Governor Brandon or Senator Brandon, your reporter can thumb back through the yellowing files and point a finger on this article of today . . . For we do not recollect that any one else has strummed his lyre to any such tune as this.

YET, WHY NOT? . . . For an active fellow like Mr. Brandon—who vibrates with life, vitality and gusto—the bench might seem too sedentary . . . And the best stepping-stone to highest public office these days is the enclosure reserved for counsel for the people before the bar of justice . . . Examples, Paul A. Dever and Thomas E. Dewey . . . One survived a landslide, and the other nearly produced an earthquake under rock-ribbed Manhattan . . . The beating of Governor Lehman would have been as cataclysmic as that.

A WORD LIKE CATACLYSMIC—we don't indulge very often—reminds us of a word we encountered the other day, and which, without a dictionary at hand, we remember only vaguely as being spelled something like r-f-r-l (or o-) c-a-n-i-n-o-p-h-y-l-e . . . In one word it summed up the late Heywood Broun . . . A person devoted to the better being of the underdog . . . (Please, if you take the trouble to look it up, don't write in and censure us for carelessness. We know we are only approximately correct in the spelling.) For Signor Rip (Il Doloroso) Valenti, some slight satisfaction must have been his at the hearty outpouring of friends which cheered him at the Brown Derby.

NEW 'DESTRY' ROLE FOR MARLENE

By Louella O. Parsons

Marlene Dietrich

IN ROUTE TO HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 13—Marlene Dietrich continues as the same vital highly-spiced gal she was in "Destry Rides Again" in her next, which Joe Pasternak has decided will be "Seven Sinners." This story is a combination of the previously announced "Singapore" plus original new material by Ladislaus Bus Fekete and Laslo Vadnai with Harry Tugend scripting. The yarn has a Dutch East Indies and Guam background.

But what is more interesting to the fans, I believe, is that Pasternak had decided against the return to languid glamour for Marlene. "Seven Sinners" gives her almost a Sadie Thompson character, and those scenes are being written for Dietrich to sing in her husky manner. The script calls for three heroes of almost equal importance and don't say I told you so! Universal would like very much to borrow Robert Preston from Paramount for one of them.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD AND CHICAGO: Just stepped onto the "Chief" when the wire came from Joan Bennett and Walter Wanger that they'd just been married in Phoenix; last night in Chicago we went to the Chez Paree to keep a date with Gertrude Niesen. Paul Draper interpreted dances with Susan Hayward and Arleen Whelan. T. Netcher and Edwin Mandel were others in our party; Jane Bryan's husband, Justin Dart, played host to us at a ham 'n' eggs supper. Jane, Chicago's most interesting bride, was there. Her wedding dress, by the way, was given her by Bette Davis; what a thrill meeting Judge Landis face to face.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

BOB CONWAY slipped into his smoking jacket and picked up his vest. He crossed the room and stood by the piano.

"Please!" he said, loudly, holding out the vest. His wife, Diane, stopped singing and looked at him.

"For the 15th time, I ask you, will you sew on this button?"

Diane ran her fingers along the keyboard. "Put it there on the chair. I'll do it right away." She made soft music on the keys. "Do you know, dear, that the Woman's Club has asked me to give a concert?"

Her husband flung the vest to a chair. "Oh, Good Heavens! What do these folks know about music!"

"I want you to accompany me," she insisted.

"I thought that you gave up all that when we were married."

"Yes, I did. But surely there is no harm . . ."

BOB studied her for a moment, and then threw up his hands and shrugged. "No, I suppose there is no harm in it. Except that you burn up everything you cook, when you get your mind on concerts. And you don't even seem to know I exist. And the laundry never gets sent out."

"Don't be so practical, Bob. You are turning into a grouchy business man."

"It surely pays bigger dividends than your music ever did." He left the room, banging the door after him.

THE TOWN HALL was packed to capacity when Bob took his place, rather sullenly, at the piano. Diane was greeted with a roar of applause.

Bob, to her despair, had refused to wear a Tuxedo. It came to him, suddenly, sitting there watching her, why these people loved her—she played up to them. She gave them something of the glamour of a real opera, by dressing the part.

When they had given the last encore and the audience called her back again and again, she took Bob by the hand and led him to the stage to receive a share of the ovation.

With a courtly, old-world grace, he bowed low, his hand at his waist. The audience loved it—a professional gesture.

They didn't know that the hand was neatly placed to cover the gap in his vest—WHERE THE BUTTON WAS MISSING!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

DOES IT PAY to help people? That depends on the kind of help—

I am sure that much of our so-called "help" is extremely harmful, and that, with all our highly organized charity, we often omit the most vital sort of assistance.

There's one sort of help we nearly always fail to give, yet it should come first of all—FAITH.

We give people food, clothes and money and endless advice—we find jobs and homes for them, but how often do we make them feel that we have any faith in them?

How often do we do reverence to that pride, that self-respect, which cries for recognition in even the most degraded human heart?

How often do we preface our charitable act by the decent statement — "I believe in you?"

THAT'S one sort of help which we don't give, yet I'm sure that it's the potent and necessary form of help. For the greatest rehabilitary force in any human being's life is his pride.

Does it pay to give advice?

I've had a good deal of experience upon which to base my answer to that question. I have been giving both written and oral advice for many years in the course of my work. Very often that advice has been supplemented by personal co-operation which has lasted over weeks or years. AND YET I DOUBT IF ONE PERSON OUT OF A THOUSAND CAN BE HELPED BY ADVICE.

Most people want advice and request it with every evidence of sincerity. There are many reasons for this. An advice-getting orgy is most gratifying to the egotism, equally, of advisee and adviser. But having received the advice, most of us fall right back into the same old rut. For it isn't advice we need. It's a new set of vertebrae. And maybe a funny-bone.

DOES IT PAY to give sympathy in the usual sense of condolence? Only in the small doses. Such sympathy is a drug. It may be wisely used to elevate the worst pang of suffering, but it can only relieve—it won't cure. Sooner or later the sufferer must buck up and face the situation—perform an operation on his life or cleanse it of its infection.

Prolonged sympathy won't help him in this task. It will only weaken him.

After all, the good old maxim held a lot of wisdom. "Help a man to help himself"—that's the only kind of help that counts.

THE PAGES of Dan Cupid's ledger are already filling with notations of important romances . . . and, if our guess is correct, he will have another entry to make after the tea which Dr. and Mrs. George O. Clark of Beacon st. are giving this afternoon in honor of their daughter, Alice Moseley Clark and Dr. Franklin K. Paddock of Pittsfield . . .

Alice graduated from the Winsor school and made her debut in December, 1933, at a dance at The Country Club . . .

ALARM CLOCKS went off bright and early in debutante boudoirs yesterday morning to remind the girls of a Vincent Club meeting to prepare for the forthcoming Vincent Ventures . . . First important job is selling ads to fill the pages of the program and this duty always falls to the lot of the youngest members . . .

Julia Barbour, chairman of the advertising campaign, called the meeting at Vincent headquarters at the Somerset yesterday to acquaint the girls with their duties, and after the fairly long discussion period the debs sallied forth armed with fountain pens and contract blanks to break down the sales resistance of business men and advertising executives all over town . . .

True to the feminine instinct to look her best for her first job almost every girl at the meeting wore her prettiest daytime costume . . . Mary Whitney was a sight for sore eyes in a currant red wool coat, buttoned up to her chin with black buttons and trimmed with a Peter Pan collar of black Persian lamb to match her fur turban . . . Patricia Withington, whose smile is so winning that she should encounter no difficulty in breaking down the sales resistance of even the most hard-boiled executive, was more informally dressed in a striking blue and honey plaid coat with a bright green scarf . . . She and Priscilla Crocker are two of the debs who favor the new bareheaded fad . . . Priscilla's dark tresses gleamed above a black Tyrolean coat piped with scarlet and trimmed with silver buttons . . . Big fluffy fur mittens completed her outfit . . .

Ring in Brookline, Belmont

HELENKA CHMIELINSKI WEARS HEIRLOOM VEIL

White chiffon velvet fashioned on monastic lines with an heirloom of duchesse lace fashioned the bridal costume of Helenka Chmielinski, who recited her marriage vows with Dr. James Hawley Currens in St. Aidan's Church, Brookline, this morning.

Her veil has been worn by three generations of brides in her mother's family, and she carried an ivory prayer book with lily of the valley markers.

The bride's sister, Marysia Chmielinski, maid of honor, wore peacock blue taffeta with a flower turban and old-fashioned bouquet. They are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Chmielinski, at whose Brookline home a wedding breakfast was served following the ceremony.

After a honeymoon in the South, the couple will live in Rochester, Minn., where Dr. Currens will be associated with the Mayo Clinic. Pre-wedding parties included showers given by Arlene McCormick of Newton, Florence Breslin of Charlestown and the doctors at the City Hospital, where the bridegroom completed his internship yesterday.

Before the outbreak of the present war, the bride's father, newspaper publisher and banker, was decorated by the Polish government with one of the highest honors awarded a layman.

Dr. Currens is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Currens of Macomb, Ill. He graduated from Duke University Medical School in 1938

ECKER-SULLIVAN CEREMONY

Wearing a gown of rare chantilly lace and carrying a prayer-book with lilies of the valley as markers, Mary Madeleine Sullivan of Belmont became the bride of Leo Anthony Ecker at a 10 o'clock ceremony today in St. Joseph's Church in Belmont. Rev. Leo Ecker, S. J., cousin of the bridegroom, officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Copley-Plaza.

Acting as matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Joseph Ecker, Jr., of Belmont, who wore turquoise velvet and tulle frock with matching hat. She carried a bouquet of mixed flowers.

Gowned alike in dubonnet velvet and tulle was the trio of bridesmaids, Mary Ida Corcoran, Loretta and Anna Ecker of Belmont. They carried bouquets of lilies

Joseph Ecker, Jr., of Belmont served as his brother's best man. The ushers included Carlton Graham of Chestnut Hill, Charles Williams, Jr., of Belmont, John Brassil of Burlington, Vt., and Maurice Bresnahan, Jr., of Medway.

Following the breakfast the couple left for the Lake Placid Club.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Sullivan of Belmont, was educated at the Choate School and Radcliffe College. Mr. Ecker was graduated from Harvard College and Harvard School of Business Administration.

Twin Salesgirls To Aid School

Writing sales slips and fitting gowns to their friends will be the unique pastime of a number of society ladies next Thursday and Friday. It's all in the interest of their favorite charity—the Boston School of Occupational Therapy. The ladies will serve as salesgirls at an exclusive Newbury st. gown shop which is donating a percentage of the receipts to the building fund of the school.

Mrs. A. Barr Comstock, chairman of the advertising committee of the Boston Morning Musicales which benefit the school, is in charge of the two-day sale.

Assisting her will be Mrs. John D. Adams, Mrs. Wm. Emerson Barrett, Mrs. C. Stewart Black, Mrs. Thomas M. Claflin, Miss Louise Coburn, Mrs. Clare Hill Draper, Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, Mrs. Hatherly Foster, Mrs. John A. Greene and several others.

Style Show Aids Charity

An attractive array of Propar-vulis Club members will parade an equally attractive array of Dame Fashion's newest and most exciting creations up in the Somerset's Louis XIV Ballroom this afternoon . . . one of the highlights of the annual charity bridge.

Elizabeth McCarthy, vice-president, is general chairman of the party . . . under the direction of Rt. Rev. Robert F. Barry . . . spiritual director of the club.

Pivot bridge starts at 3 o'clock and will be followed by the fashion show and tea, with Flora Tomasello, presiding chairman.

Serving as models will be Helen Vallely, Mildred Cotter, Norma Freeman, Barbara Murphy, Teresa Kean, Jane Holland, Lillian McFadden and Helen Murray

Start Dinner With Soup

By MARTHA LEE

One way to make the head of the family glad he came home for dinner is to start it off with soup. For men are said to be partial to soup. The cream variety, especially, is a sure men's favorite.

You can be certain your soups meet all specifications if you use quick-cooking tapioca as a thickener. It never lumps and it gives the rich "body" that is the real test of a perfect cream soup.

Steak, chops, broiled fish or meat balls, with a cooked vegetable and a green salad, introduced by the cream soup and topped off with a seasonable dessert, make up a dinner any man would relish. The rest of the family will like it too.

DUCHESS SOUP

2 tbsp. tapioca.
1 tsp. salt.
⅛ tsp. pepper.
1 tbsp. minced onion.
4 cups milk.
2 tbsp. butter.
½ cup grated American cheese.
2 tbsp. chopped parsley.

Combine tapioca, salt, pepper, onion and milk in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 10 to 12 minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add butter, cheese, and parsley, and cook until cheese is melted. Serves 4 to 6.

GARNISH FOR SOUPS

To garnish soups, sprinkle with chopped parsley, a dash of paprika, a few croutons, grated cheese, or a few tiny round crackers. Or place a spoonful of whipped cream in center and sprinkle with a dash of paprika or chopped parsley.

CORN SOUP

1½ cups canned corn
1 cup meat broth, or
1 cup water and 2 bouillon cubes
2½ cups rich milk
1½ tbsp. tapioca
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. sugar
⅛ tsp. minced onion
1½ tbsp. butter

Cook corn in broth 10 minutes; force through sieve. Combine with milk, tapioca, salt, sugar, and onion in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 10 to 12 minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add butter. Garnish with popcorn, if desired. Serves 4 to 6.

CELERY SOUP

1½ cups celery stalks and leaves, finely cut
3 cups rich milk, scalded, and
1 cup chicken or meat broth
1 cup water
(or 4 cups rich milk and 2 bouillon cubes, chicken flavor)
3 tbsp. tapioca
1½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. celery salt
Dash of cayenne
Few drops scraped onion
3 tbsp. butter

Cook celery in water 10 minutes. Add milk mixture, tapioca, salt, celery salt, and cayenne, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add onion and butter. Serves 4.

Quick Reply To Letter

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My boy friend comes to Sunday night supper almost every Sunday, and I should like to know if it would be right to invite his sister some time. Our engagement hasn't been announced yet, but we expect to do just that in a couple of months or so. May I have a reply in a week or so?

I'm also interested in the recipe for Poor Man's Fruit Cake, mention about which I saw in your column, but forgot what I had to do to get it. Also, have you any special recipes for dishes to be served for supper on Sundays?

AN ADMIRER.

Please let me say to you and all my friends who want prompt answers that it is not possible to have replies in the paper immediately, as the column is made up some time in advance. The only way to be sure of getting an immediate answer to your letters is to send me a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope.

The recipes which you want will be forthcoming if you comply with the above request for a stamped envelope.

Birthday Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Saturday, January 13

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY—You are a supporter of right and a condemner of wrong; one who will expect the same fairness in all dealings that you extend. You thrive best under intelligent, kindly understanding; are probably the sincerely studious type who can not only plan well but who can put those plans into action and see them through to completion—or at least to the completion that is the best of your ability. You should have cheery, happy companions. Blessings.

LUCKY NUMBER—Today's lucky number is 32.

LUCKY COLOR—Today's lucky color is mulberry.

Fashion's Ablaze---Hot Pink

By ARLINE GOULD

THE DEEP SOUTH at your fingertips . . . have you heard about the latest cosmetic color sensation? It flames dramatically in the style spotlight . . . it speaks of the warm luxuriousness of the tropics . . . it's called "Hot Pink!"

A rich, warm-toned pink you'll use again and again as costume stimulant . . . and much newer, much more exciting than scarlet with the all-white Southern wardrobe that is such high style.

Its glowing, tropical color will light your grays and legion blues, and give that first hint of desert warmth to a snowbound costume of sober colors.

Take it South with you to the beach . . . West to the Rockies and the sage and desert . . . it's marvelous when your skin burns the light amber tone of a first sun-coat.

It's a forerunner of spring . . . that well-known "first swallow" that means summer is ahead.

Such a grand job of color co-ordination is being done that you can get it not only in nail lacquer which started the whole thing, but in a matching, wonderful lipstick! This is a prize of a lipstick . . . and we're connoisseurs of such. No running, no smearing, but richly vivid and lush on the lips.

If you'd like to learn about the "Hot Pink" nail polish and lacquer, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Should She Have Gone?

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—Some time ago a friend of mine received a wedding invitation, but cannot remember the exact wording. She does remember, however, that in the lower left corner of the invitation was the address of the girl's parents, with the words, "Reception directly after the ceremony at (address)." Was it proper for her to go just to the church ceremony or also to go to the girl's home for the reception?

2—I would also like to know how to begin a letter to a doctor when you are forwarding a check to him? Do you commence "Dear Dr. Black" or "Dear Sir?"

3—Is this letter signed correctly?

Sincerely yours,
Mary Smith.
(Mrs. A. B. Smith).

1—The words in the lower left corner of the invitation—the words "Reception" and the address—meant an invitation to the reception at the home of the bride's parents, and it was proper for your friend to go to the reception as well as to the church ceremony.

2—Begin your letter: Dear Doctor Black. (It is better form to spell the word Doctor in full.)

3—Yes, this is a correct form of signature of a letter to a person who is not familiar with your formal married name. Usually, however, a married woman uses the surname of her maiden name also: Mary Brown Smith. And it is better form not to use initials: (Mrs. Albert Smith.)

The STRANGE GUY

A Complete Short Story Daily on This Page

By CHARLES McGUIRK

WHAT'LL it be Mister? Bourbon? Yes sir! We don't get many orders for bourbon down this way. That 40 cents a shot is a little more than the boys come in here like to pay. Highball? O. K.! This sounds like old times!

I used to work in a bar up on Forty-fifth st. Yeh. Nice trade. A lot of women but you can't get all the breaks. You get used to them after a while. Or you tell yourself you do. Me? I'll take men. They're easy to wait on and easy to handle. No, thanks, I never touch it when I'm on duty. Me and it and duty don't mix. Or maybe we do mix—all over the joint. That's the way I lost about nine jobs. You've heard that one about a drinking bartender.

What makes you think this joint is familiar, Mister? I never seen you down here before. You never have been down here before? Well, then, I wouldn't know—or maybe I would. Do you go to shows much? No, not picture shows. I mean the theater. Oh, you do. Well, maybe you saw that show they call "Out To Sea." You did? Well, that explains everything. That bar on the waterfront in the first and third acts is taken right straight from this joint. It's a ringer for it. All it hasn't got that this one has is the name, Tom O'Rourke.

And I'll tell you something else. And it's funny. I can go right over to that telephone and drop a nickel and call a number and I can get as many tickets as I want for nothing. I'm telling you! That's what makes it so funny. Sure, I know the show is a sell-out. But if I wanted to take your dough, I'd bet you a couple of bucks I could do just what I said. I could go to that phone and get them ducats. How do I know? Because I was told I could. Never mind by who. Come on, I'll buy you a drink. No, you don't need to take no beer. Have another shot of bourbon. On the house. O. K. Luck yourself.

Mister, I was born right down here on the waterfront and, if it's all right with God, I'll die down here. I never knew I liked it because it was just pretty. Until he told me. Who? Why, the strange guy.

A NICE GUY

He walked in here one day just like you did today. I didn't know him from Adam. I never had seen him before. We get a lot of sailors in here Mister. Are you a sailor? Well neither was this guy. But he could have been one. He was big across the shoulders and he carried himself nice. He had a tough looking mug. I bet it stopped plenty of punches in its day. But it quit looking tough when you came to his eyes. They were blue and they were gentle. And he smiled a lot. He didn't laugh. He just smiled. As though he liked living. A nice guy to meet.

He came in on a summer day, it was. Just about this time when there was nothing doing. And he ordered a beer. So I drew him one and he asked me if I'd have a drink and I give him the same answer I give you. And he laughed a little when I asked him if he had ever heard the one about the drinking bartender.

So he just stood there drinking his beer and not saying a word and I'll be darned if the first thing I knew I wasn't telling him the story of my life. Me. A bartender that's had to listen to drunks for years. And he just stood there, sipping his beer and listening polite, or maybe he was not listening. I kept right on talking. I was like a woman. I couldn't stop.

The Cast of Characters in "The Strange Guy"

JIMMY, who tends bar in O'Rourke's saloon.
A STRANGE GUY, who remains a mystery to all the customers.
A THIRD MAN, to whom the bartender tells his story.

What did I tell him? Well, I told him how it was with me when I was a kid. And what I did and who I went with and how I came to get married to Bella, the missus she is now. And how we had a kid and we lost him when he was two and we didn't have no more.

And then Marie came in. She couldn't sleep and she had started out on her rounds early and her dogs were hurting her. This guy looked at her, respectful and she smiled at him and he asked her if she'd have a drink and she said she didn't care if she did. And they got to talking. Or Marie got to talking. He just stood there, listening and smiling.

He stood there all the afternoon. And he stood there up to the time I closed. We put out a meal, you know. Regulations. And he had a plate of ham and cabbage. And he smoked cigarettes and he sipped his beer. He didn't drink much. He just stood there.

Along about 10 o'clock that night, Dan Marin got a little bit too much liquor and he got curious about this strange guy. And he says to him: "Well, you got us all shooting off our mouths about who you are. Who are you?" And he says, "I'm just a fellow who happened to walk in here." And Dan says, "How do we know you ain't a stool pigeon." And the strange guy says, "That's right. How do you know?" And went on sipping his beer. Well, that struck everybody funny and they all started to laugh. Dan didn't like the laughing so he walked up to the guy and he says, "For two cents, I'd bat you one in the kisser. I don't like your mug anyway."

The guy put down his beer and reached in his pocket. He came out with a handful of change and he pushed his fingers into it and finally found two cents. "There's your money," he says, "I'm kind of sick of my face myself. Go ahead and change it." So Dan stood there staring at him, his chin pushed out and looking tough. But the guy just stood looking back at him, sort of polite and absent, and, all of a sudden, Dan says, "I'll buy a drink instead." "O. K.," says the guy. "Give me a beer, Jimmy." He knew my name already. So I dished out a couple of glasses of suds and they hoisted their glasses at each other.

THE FUNNIEST

The guy bought. Dan one back and, the first thing Dan knew, he was talking his head off like I'd done. And the guy just stood there, listening, with his eyes far away as though he was thinking of something away off from here. He was still standing there when I told the gang that it was time to close up. Dan offered to go wherever he was walking with him but the guy said, "No, thank you," he had a little business to do uptown but he'd be here tomorrow. When he went out, Dan waited for me and he says, "That's the funniest guy I ever met. He just looks at you and you talk your head off."

It was true, too. He was back the next day. He came in about the same time and he did about the same thing as he'd done the day before. He just stood there, sipping his beer and thinking.

"Harry, please don't leave me, ever again. I'll do whatever you say."

Look, Mister, if that guy had been a stool pigeon he'd have had to use both hands and a megaphone to tell all he knew. Why, my missus came in to sort of take a gander at him because I'd told her the way he affected people. And when I told the guy who she was, she smiled and said, "How do you do." And—you guessed it—she started telling him about the time I got drunk and took her for a sparring partner and about the kid and how cute he was and how he died one day. And I started to laugh but then something stuck in my throat. I never like to hear the missus talk about the little guy. He was a cute little kid. Say, I guess I'll have a drink. What's yours?

Well, this fellow came in every day until he got to be a fixture. But he never changed a bit. He was always quiet. He was always polite and people were always shooting their mouths off to him. Then one day he didn't come in and I went around as though I had lost my other arm. I got to worrying about him so that I couldn't sleep. And when I told Bella he hadn't showed up that day, she got to worrying too and we sat up all night talking and we killed two dozen cans of beer and I felt awful the next day.

But there he was the next day. He came in, quiet and polite, just like he always did and I reached over and shook hands with him and I told him everybody in the joint missed him the day before and we hoped he wasn't having no trouble. And he said he wasn't. That everything was O. K. and would I have a drink? So I took a little one because I needed it.

We were drinking together, him looking out to sea with that far off look and me telling him about how me and Bella had stayed up all night talking, when the door opened slowly and a lady came in. She was tall and red-headed and she was wearing clothes that you could tell had just come over from the other side. And she stood there, just inside the door a minute and then she said, "Hello, Harry," and her voice was husky and it had a kind of sob in it.

THE LAST VISIT

He put down his drink slow on the bar and I noticed his hand was trembling. But you couldn't tell nothing from his face. He turned to her and he said, "Hello, Margaret. This is Jimmy. Will you have a drink?" She came to the bar as if she was floating. I never seen anything so graceful in my life and I've seen them beauty parades too. And she says, "Yes, I'll have some champagne." So the guy nodded to me and it was just by luck I had a couple of bottles. And I popped one open. And the guy says, "Three glasses, Jimmy. We'd like you to have a drink with us." So I put out three glasses and I drank my first one in one gulp. But him and her just stood there, sipping the champagne like he sipped his beer until I got wise to myself and got her a stool. It was when I was bringing it, I heard her say, "Harry, please don't leave me, ever again. I'll do whatever you say."

So that was the last I saw of the guy and me and the missus and everybody else missed him.

And about six months after that, one night, that nickel phone over there rang and I answered it and it was the strange guy. And he said, "Jimmy, would you and the missus be our guests at the Delahambra theater? Fine. We'll be expecting you." So I went home and told the missus and she went nuts. You know the old one about not having a thing to wear. But she'd have come in her underwear to get a gander at that other girl.

So we went and the strange guy and the girl were standing in the lobby waiting for us. And he was dressed just like he always was. But she had on evening clothes and you could see that what she'd promised in her other clothes was all on the level. And we went in and saw this play, "Out To Sea" and it was this joint. And the people in it were people in this joint. They even had me in it. The strange guy was a play writer. What do you do for a living Mister?

"Your a writer!... Good night. What is this, an epidermis? Well look, Mister, if you write anything about this joint, get the name in will you? Tom O'Rourke. It will tickle the old man.

THE END

Slippery Walk Costs Bandits $40 of Loot

MANSFIELD, Jan. 13—Investigating a $45 store holdup, police today found that two gunmen had slipped on the ice and dropped $40 of their loot outside the store of Alexander Brogna in Pratt st.

The men slipped while running towards a waiting automobile after holding up Brogna's 14-year-old daughter, Mary.

NEW BRITISH WAR LIST

LONDON, Jan. 13 (AP)—The air ministry has published its 17th casualty list of the war, 18 men killed in action and 19 missing and believed killed in action.

SIX MEET DEATH ON ICY ROADS

Two more deaths were recorded today as a result of icy conditions in New England, bringing to six the total of traffic fatalities within the last 24 hours.

Affording a "break" for winter sports addicts, the storm left most of New England an ermine-lined countryside, but Boston drew only light snow followed by mild rain and springlike weather at midmorning.

RAIN OR SNOW DUE

The weatherman predicted a cloudy Sunday with rain or snow on the coast and snow in the interior.

Killed in traffic mishaps today were Mrs. Alice M. Walsh, 55, of Woodland ave., Natick, and Warren Wray, 69, of Leominster.

Mrs. Walsh was instantly killed when struck by a auto at West Natick as she attempted to cross West Central st.

Wray, police reported, was fatally injured when struck by a car driven by Gustave E. Mangson of Worcester.

OTHER FATALITIES

Others dead as a result of highway accidents are Mr. and Mrs. George W. Bacon of Waterbury, Ct., killed in a Lenox crash; Arthur Baxter, 55, of Hollis, N. H., crushed in a Milford, N. H., accident, and Mrs. Blanche Woodman, of Hall st., Somerville, hit by a car in West Somerville.

Vincent Fay, of Pearl st., Newton, narrowly escaped death when his car skidded into a freight train at the West Concord railroad crossing.

He was unhurt, but his car was damaged.

Seek Roxbury Purse Thief

Police today sought a tall, rangy youth who snatched a week's pay from Mrs. Sybil Carmichael, Warren st., Roxbury, while she watched a bowling match in a Cliff st., Roxbury, alley.

Mrs. Carmichael told police she had gone to the alley with a party of friends. She was carrying a handbag containing her week's wages of $27, she said, when suddenly the youth walked in, snatched the bag and ran.

12,000 TO SEE V.F.W. TRACK MEET AT GARDEN

By WILL CONNELL

Boston's first track and field circus of the winter unrolls in the Garden tonight under the banner of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. And before this merry-go-round of champions ends, records will totter, 12,000 customers will scream themselves hoarse, and the sports authors will wear thin all their favorite adjectives for the Sunday A. M. editions. School and college relays, five invitation track numbers, a high jump, pole vault, two mile steeplechase and mile walk are stitched into this dazzling race tapestry.

Every man in the specials is a titleholder of some sort and four world record makers are included, Jim Herbert in the 600, John Borican Glenn Cunningham in the mile and [illegible] to the two mile.

The college relays include New York U. vs. Fordham, Tech vs. Williams, 69th Regiment, N. Y., vs. B. A. A., and a few others, just enough to break up the program of solo battles.

Glenn Cunningham is favored in the mile, and though he isn't apt to smash his world mark of 4:4.4, so fast is the field that time close to 4:10 seems possible.

The Garden track, 11 laps to the mile, has been completely checked to assure the best possible surface, and with Archie San Romani, Wayne Rideout, Chuck Fenske and Luigi Beccali to force Cunningham, a thriller is certain.

The two-mile special is no less colorful. Don Lash, who set the phenomenal world standard of 8:58 in Boston's Garden three years back, has the morning line edge. But he'll have to lead steeplechase champ Tom Deckard, college king Greg Rice, Big Ten ace Walter Mehl, perennial contender Joe McCluskey, and George De George, Gotham distance star, and that's a tough assignment.

600 A SCRAMBLE

But imagine the task facing record-setter Jim Herbert (1:11:1) in the Cronin Memorial 600. Harold Cagle, Oklahoma flier; Doug Raymond, meet record holder from B. A. A.; Dick Gill, ex-B. C. and now B. A. A., and college champ Wesley Wallace from Fordham are fit for the wild scramble a 600 special produces.

The Paul Dever 880 likewise assures heart throbs, with great John Borican from New Jersey hoping to hold off John Woodruff, ex-Pitt flash; Campbell Kane from Indiana, Sugar Bowl winner; Gene Venzke, Pennman who wants to sharpen his speed at the half instead of his favorite mile, and Charley Beetham, several kinds of a middle distance champion.

THREE HOURS OF THRILLS

Sprinters in the 50 are Ken Clapp, Brown lightning streak; Fred Cieter of Williams, Bob Schumo of Williams, Frank Zelmetz of the B. A. A. and Allan Tolmich of Detroit, who will finish in practically a dead heat, judging from times this winter.

All in all, from the start at 7:30 with the 50-yard N. E. title sprint until the finish of the two-mile some three hours later, there'll be a yell a minute in these VFW contests.

Jurges, Bonura Up in Arms

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 (AP)—While first baseman Zeke Bonura has been sounding off in New Orleans about the $4000 cut the Giants seek to make in his wages, shortstop Billy Jurges has gone straight to headquarters with his complaint.

Jurges, who lives in suburban Rockville Center, Long Island, telephoned the Giants' office yesterday to point out to Pres. Horace Stoneham that even though the club finished fifth, he led the National League in fielding his position, and in general was a valuable man to have around.

Archie San Romani toots own horn at Hotel Manger. Arch expects to beat Cunningham tonight in VFW mile.

Romani Ready For Good Race, Predicts Jaako

Track Coach Jaako Mikkola of Harvard will be watching the "dream mile" at the Garden tonight very closely. All week long he watched Archie San Romani train in the Briggs Cage on Soldiers Field for the renewal of his feud with Glenn Cuningham in the VFW games.

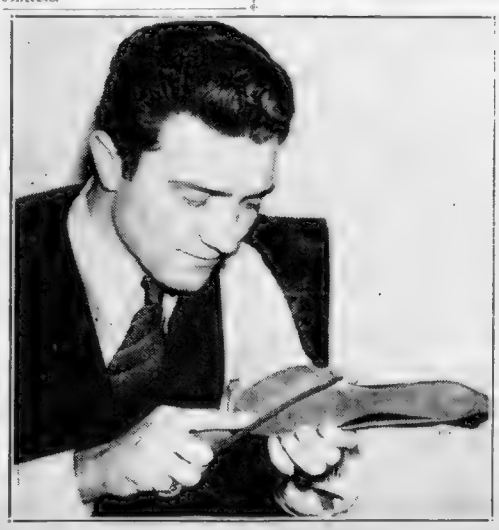
Hence Jaako's interest in the slim Karsan who may be ready to succeed Cunningham as king of the [illegible]

"I saw San Romani break the world's 2000-meter record in Finland," said the Harvard coach today, "and he was impressive. Now he seems to be in excellent shape, and I believe he's ready for a very good race."

Archie himself is anxious to win. He came to Boston for the week's training and ran several fast quarters to sharpen his sense of pace during his tuneups.

"I am in top physical shape," Archie said this morning, "and in my best spirits for a long time. I've shaken off my old worries about competitors, and I'm ready for tonight's race."

Archie has no soft touch tonight, even apart from his duel with Cunningham. Chuck Fenske, Wayne Rideout, and Luigi Beccali, ex-Olympic 1500 champion, are ready to make it a five-man event from gun to tape.



"But first I'll put an edge on these runners. They've got to be sharp to whip Glennie boy."

"Enough of that," says Arch. "Now I'll stretch a bit, then tune up for mile with nice long walk along Charlesbank."

HOLD TRAINS

The Boston & Maine Railroad today announced it will hold over all trains leaving the North Station from 11:30 p. m. on for 10 minutes tonight to accommodate out-of-town track fans attending to VFW games at the Garden.

Maeki, Nurmi to Visit U. S.

HELSINKI, Jan. 13 (INS)—Paavo Nurmi and Taisto Maeki, world famous Finnish distance-running champions, will leave Finland soon for the United States where they will seek to win help for the Finnish cause, it was announced today.

Nurmi and Maeki were scheduled to have visited the United States in the interests of the 1940 Olympic Games, which were to have been conducted in Helsinki. But when Soviet Russia invaded Finland, both rushed to the colors.

They have been fighting in the Finnish army with many other crack Finnish athletes, but the Finnish high command now feels they can serve better as ambassadors of good will.

According to present plans, the star athletes will take part in a series of sports events throughout the United States in connection with ex-President Herbert Hoover's Finnish relief committee.

BRUINS SUSPEND PETTINGER

Two interesting announcements came out of the Boston Bruins camp. The first was that the Bruins in the second half of the National League season would play a heavy body checking game. The second was that Gordon Pettinger, utility player, had been suspended and fined by Manager Art Ross for refusal to go to Hershey.

14 MAN SQUAD

Pettinger's suspension means that the Bruins will be back to their 14 man squad again tomorrow night against Les Canadiens in the Boston Garden game, but it in no way weakens the team because in recent games Pettinger has played but a few minutes.

Bruins style of play through the years has always been a heavy body checking game. It is the type of game that has made Bruins so popular with the hockey fans of both the United States and Canada over the years. The Bruins, however, have gotten away from hard body checking this season and have played more of a streamlined game. But they are going back to the checking this half season, one of the reasons being that it is one method of beating the Rangers, Bruins foes at present challengers for the world championship.

LEAFS CRACKED

Against Toronto Leafs on Thursday, when Bruins won an exciting game 3-2 and Flash Cain notched four goals to equal the N. L. one record, both the Leafs and Bruins played a hard checking game, and it was a game of which would crack. The Leafs crocked and the Bruins won. Canadiens will get the same sort of a rugged greeting when they come here tomorrow

New Attendance Record Likely For 1940 Ice Follies at Garden

CARTWHEEL—Carl Zwack swings Idi Papez around like a pinwheel as they rehearse for "Ice Follies" which opens seven-day run Monday at Garden. The Viennese duo are rated the world's best in their specialty.

Harris Legg, Canadian trick skater and ice hurdler, is one of the featured members of the Ice Follies cast which takes over the Garden next week, starting Monday night.

Legg's Snow Man act is his much difficult routine, performed on stilts and he has a steeplechase number as well. Another notable acrobatic part of the Follies is furnished by the McKellen brothers of Michigan, who have developed a first class ice program of acrobatic stunts plus comedy.

Idi Papez, and Karl Zwack, one of the world's best pairs, will be spotlighted. Their teamwork good enough to win world laurels in amateur days, has been polished to high degree and there's no pair able to perform hazardous lifts with such effortless grace.

With Bess Ehrhardt and Roy Shipstad topping the bill in solo and pair performances; the brilliant Evelyn Chandler in her cartwheels, splits and spins; Eddie Shipstad and Oscar Johnson giving the show ribsplitting comedy, and a large supporting cast, the Follies are likely to set some kind of attendance figures, next Monday through Sunday at the Garden.

RANGERS BEST EVER? CONSIDER '28 FRENCH

CHICAGO, Jan. 13 (AP)—Record breakers or not, there is little the red-hot New York Rangers can do to dim the brilliance of those famous Flying Frenchmen, Les Canadiens, of 1927-28.

True, the Rangers have not lost a National Hockey League game in almost two months, winning or tying 18 games in a row, equalling the streak set by Les Canadiens of 12 years ago.

Rangers need a victory or tie tonight against Toronto Maple Leafs to eclipse the record of the Flying Frenchmen.

KERR VS. HAINSWORTH

Since Nov. 23 the Rangers, with 15 men on the squad, have won 13 games and tied five, scoring 69 goals to their opponents' 28. Goalie Dave Kerr has recorded three shutouts in that streak.

But consider the performance of the Canadiens. A 12-man squad played 18 games in 49 days, winning 15 and tying three.

Goalie George Hainsworth blanked the opposition five times and allowed only one goal on 10 other occasions. Canadiens scored 58 goals in their spree, allowed 16.

Red Dutton, manager of New York Americans, and some other observers tab the Rangers as the finest aggregation of hockey players ever put together, but, as always, there are dissenters.

Some of hockey's all-time greats were Canadiens 12 years ago—Howie Morenz, Aurel Joliat, Art Gagne, to mention a few of their brilliant wingmen.

Other offensive stars were Leo Gaudrelaut, Pit Lepine, Wil LaRochelle and Gizzy Hart.

On defense there were Silvio Mantha, Battleship Leduc, Cecil Hart and Herb Gardiner, with Hainsworth in the net.

HAD RULES CHANGED

Hainsworth shut out the opposing team 13 times that season and gave up a single goal in 21 other games.

Canadiens, in fact, were so invincible that the rules were changed the next year to allow a player to cross the blue line ahead of the puck, an alteration designed to lessen the difference between the Frenchmen and their foes.

But the change backfired, making all games offensive sprees, so the rule was changed again in mid-season.

Sports Interlude -:- -:- By BILL GRIMES

Although they've been shifting the games around from one night to another until it would take a Philadelphia lawyer to determine when and where they are playing, the Boston Olympics continue to pack the Garden . . . The Pics played to approximately 25,000 on Thursday and last night in their two-game series against the Valleyfield Braves.

▼ ▼ ▼

Clark Shaughnessy, who was in on the death of football at the University of Chicago, has signed to coach Stanford . . . The Palo Alto authorities are paying him $10,000 . . . for what? . . . To wash out the game at Stanford . . . If Boston College wants to secure a real attraction for 1941, John P. Curley should contact Southern Methodist, which is favored to win the Southwest Conference next fall . . . Ed McKeever, Texas backfield coach at B. C. is trying to offset the snow with a pair of cowboy boots.

Vito Ananis, the high scorer among the New England pigskin chasers, will take a crack at pro football if he is the recipient of a worthwhile contract . . . Vito is the type of football player who'd show to better advantage among the pros than in the college game . . .

When Herbie Cain came to the Bruins in exchange for Charlie Sands, it was too early for the hockey experts to start looking up his record . . . But, after Herbie had scored four goals, which was just one tally behind the all-time record which is held jointly by "Chuck" Conacher, now with the Americs, and Manager Pit Lepine of Les Canadiens, the boys began to dig into the files . . . During the five seasons he was with the Flying Frenchmen, Herbie Cain scored 68 goals and was credited with 75 assists for a total of 141 points . . . His banner year was 1934-35, his second in the N. H. L., during which he scored 20 goals . . . Barring accidents, Cain is headed for his greatest year in pro hockey, for with 23 games to play he has made 13 goals and five assists . . .

▼ ▼ ▼

Leo Daley, the former Boston College head coach, will be elected president of the Eastern Intercollegiate Football Officials' Ass'n today in New York . . . Leo was to have been voted into the chief executive's berth a year ago, but it just so happened that there was something rotten in Demark and he missed out . . . With Joe McKenney as the New England delegate, it will be a breeze for Leo today . . .

▼ ▼ ▼

Bill Delaney came over from New York to attend the retreat at the Brighton monastery . . . He looks and says that he feels much better than when he left town the week before Christmas . . . Bill's twin, Tom, and Al Donahue, the garter king, are also members of Bob Quinn's party . . .

▼ ▼ ▼

Why is young Joe Monahan playing under an assumed name at Belmont High School? . . . I saw him in the nets against Harvard freshmen and the following day learned that his name was "Ben Smith" . . . How come?

▼ ▼ ▼

Capt. "Dit" Clapper is the high scorer of the Bruins. In 12 and a half seasons, not counting play-off games, "Dit" has scored 191 goals and made 146 assists for a total of 337 points . . . When he gets his 200th goal, Capt. "Dit" is liable to toss away his skates and thumb his way back to Hastings, Ont . . .

ROOM AND BOARD By Eugene Ahern

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

BETWEEN COURSES at the dinner tendered in his honor at the Brown Derby, Rip Valenti told me he is planning two boxing shows for the Garden for early in February . . . The dinner to Rip was a success with 500 persons in attendance.

Fred Ostergren, Arlington High coach, once hit six home runs in a sinigle game while playing semi-pro ball for Reading . . . Fred was immediately signed by the late John I. Taylor of the Red Sox and was given a tryout at first base . . . Ostergren was farmed out to the New England League . . . Then came successful college and high school coaching career . . . In Roxbury as youngsters, Fred and myself were the battery on a playground team . . . I still consider the outshoot Fred used to throw then the widest of its kind I have ever seen.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars have certainly produced plenty of class athletes for their track meet in the Garden tonight . . . It is a parade of champions and as a result the competition should be keen . . . I met "Spider" Murphy in Newspaper Row . . . He declares the only reason he would go to Florida this winter would be for his health as he says he is weary of pushing heavy metal through the mutuel windows . . . "Spider" has concluded he cannot beat the races . . . Like you and I.

Eastern members of the American-Record All-America team are training for the grand national finals that will be held in San Francisco on January 25 . . . The New England members of the team will leave for the Coast next Friday afternoon.

"Dave Wilson's Winners" on Sale Monday

"DAVE WILSON'S WINNERS," a code book by the world's champion handicapper, will be placed on sale on Monday. In the Race Special of Monday's Boston Evening American will be named the Wilson code horses. Each day the Race Special edition will carry this exclusive feature.

"Dave Wilson's Winners" will also have a list of "Wake-Up" horses as well as an array of horses at Santa Anita that are ready to win. The booklet also contains secret workouts, and the names of the horses that turned in the fast times.

I have seen a copy of "Dave Wilson's Winners," and it is sure to be well received by the public.

In a recent letter, Wilson sends me the following interesting information from Hialeah Park:

"Browsing through the Hialeah Park clubhouse . . . The New England contingent much in evidence, with B. A. Dario, Johnny Brouse, Lyman Brusie, Bill Hodson, Rocky Palladino, Harry Barnett, Willard H. Stevens, Bill Hartman and a score of Yankee horsemen decorating the grounds . . . From the Middle West have come Ben Jones, Warren Wright (master of Calumet Farm), John Bainton, Gene Lutz, T. C. Worden, R. O. Higdon, Herbert M. Woolf, A. C. Snyder and others . . . New Yorkers are a dime a dozen, for this is their regular winter stamping grounds . . . The flamingoes on parade in the infield, prouder than the thoroughbreds pattering past on the running strip . . . It's amusing to watch them flutter out of the water in single file and line up near the rail to see the ponies gallop past.

"The Seminole Indians with their squatter rights in the infield, dressed in colorful robes . . . No wonder Florida racing attracts the cream of sportsmen and sportswomen from all corners of the sphere . . . Eyes forward on the Puett starting gate which takes the attention away from the assistant starters and the worst post actor . . . Just a prophecy, but this gate is not only here to stay but will soon be a "must" on every race track list in the country . . . It means the fans will have to wager early for no field is at the post more than 30 seconds.

"Look what it did to Heelfly and Specify, two of the greatest rogues in contemporary racing . . . They move into position without budging and break like a bat out of you-know-where . . . And our early tip for the Widener Handicap (subject to change without notice) is the Fitzsimmons-trained pair of Bosley and Olympus . . . Might be champs . . . We'll keep you advised."

Tom Thorp on Road Back to Health

TOM THORP, famous football and racing official who was recently operated upon in New York, is on the road back to health . . . Tom is anxious to get South to take his place in the stewards' stand at Oriental Park in Havana . . . Tom will later serve at Tropical Park, and then come back to New England racing.

Introducing the coaches at the American-Record schoolboy football dinner, Bill Grimes did the best job of extemporaneous speaking I have heard in several years . . . He knew all of the humorous incidents in the lives of the coaches, and he didn't pull his punches . . . Grimes knows more college and school coaches and players than any other New England sports writer.

Al Mello came down from Lowell for Rip Valentis' dinner, and sat in with "Red" Chapman of Chelsea and Al Lacy . . . When Jack Sharkey joined the group, Sam Cohen remarked that Mello, Chapman, Sharkey and Lacy would make quite an All-America boxing backfield . . . Mello looked in fine physical condition, and manages to keep his weight down . . . Al saved a part of his ring earnings, and is doing well in Lowell.

Miss Janet Carroll of the Latin Quarter was an added feature at the dinner . . . This young lady has one of the finest voices of anybody appearing at a New England night club.

200,000 ANGLERS SEEK $15,000 IN MIAMI PRIZES

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 13 (AP)—Seasoned anglers, novices, men, women and children are roaming the waters off Miami in quest of prize fish in one of the largest-scale competitive events ever staged—the 99-day $15,000 Metropolitan Miami fishing tournament.

THEY'VE GOT A DATE—Yes siree, all three of these fair maids will participate in Silver Skates Derby at Garden, Feb. 4. Left to right, they are: Evelyn O'Hara, Somerville; Mariola Langos, Back Bay; Blanche MacArthur, Beacon Hill.

Before the tournament ends April 14, more than 100,000 anglers will have sought the hundreds of prizes offered for 29 varieties of fish.

Some 124,000 participated last year, and officials wouldn't be surprised if the total ran close to 200,000 in the fifth annual tournament.

PRIZES EVERY DAY

Over in neighboring Bahaman waters, millionaire sportsmen test their skill against the antics of marlin weighing hundreds of pounds.

Out in the emerald-green Gulf stream, charter cruisers bounce along with their occupants fighting the spectacular sailfish.

Closer inshore, along the bays and shallows, less pretentious entrants try their luck at the smaller bonefish, snook and channel bass.

There are prizes for the biggest fish, the smallest fish, and oddest.

There are daily prizes, weekly prizes and grand prizes, headed by a "national championship" team event, with some 15 cities and clubs competing.

NOVICE GETS TARPON

One of the most notable catches last year was a 102½-pound tarpon by a novice, Miss Frankie Laidlaw, who was fishing from a rowboat.

The tournament began Jan. 7 with a marine flotilla in which 227 pleasure craft, pennants flying and bands playing, paraded.

Anglers, Inc., the nonprofit sponsoring organization, is composed of sportsmen wishing to foster and publicize fishing in this area.

Improve Stamina, Skaters Advised

By OLYMPIAN

Skaters in training for the various races in the Silver Skates Derby, which will be staged in the Boston Garden on February 4th, should pay more attention to wind, stamina and endurance and less attention to speed, according to one of New England's outstanding sports authorities.

It is Ralph H. Colson, assistant supervisor of physical education in Massachusetts, who is giving the important training tip.

The former University of Pennsylvania star, says:

"I was an official in last year's great Silver Skates Derby, which attracted a record entry and drew a record crowd to the Boston Garden. I believe even a greater field will take part next month for wherever I go throughout the state I find the ponds black with skaters, and all talking about the great Silver Skates Derby.

"In both Fitchburg and Worcester this week I told boys, who I watched in training for the Silver Skates Derby, to leave sharpening up their speed alone for awhile and to confine their efforts to improving their wind and developing stamina and endurance.

LACKED STAMINA

"In last year's race I could not but help notice how many youngsters started like a runaway whirlwind and blew up before half the distance was covered. If they had paid more atention to developing their wind and stamina this would not have happened.

"Speed isn't worth anything without stamina and endurance to back it up. For another week at least contestants shouldn't bother anything about their speed. They will have a fortnight to do that before the big race. Let them center their efforts on hardening up, as already advised by my friend Jack Ryder, and in getting wind and bottom.

"If snow should prevent the boys in isolated country districts from skating they should keep in physical trim with long walks and exercise in the open air."

LATEST ENTRIES

From all over New England entries continue to roll in. Among the latest are:

Ervin Chicoine, 63 La Fountain st., Burlington, Vt.; Thomas O'Brien, 96 Summer st., Taunton, Mass.; Eugene Sheets, Catawba st., Roxbury; Edward McDowall, 6 Bath st., Worcester; Maurice E. Lanoue, 25 Main st., Cumberland, R. I.; Kenneth and Robert Morrell, 306 California st., Newton; Henry Hall, Jr., 99 Pine st., Manchester; Chief Colett, 296 Copeland st., W. Quincy.

Leonard Brassaro, 50 West st., Fitchburg; Armand and Alphonse Charet, 42 Hillside st., Roxbury; Armand DeGrandpre, Pierce Crossing, East Jeffray, N. H.; Edward Kukstis, 92 Rossmore rd., Jamaica Plain; James McCarthy, 12 Garland ave., Malden; Ralph D. McKiel, 12 Everett ave., Somerville; Michael Sereda, 108 Orange st., Chelsea.

Deposed Rice Coach Hailed by Home Town

ATHENS, Tex., Jan. 13 (AP)—Jimmy Kitts, deposed Rice Institute football coach, received a hero's welcome in his old home town.

Four thousand persons turned out to welcome Kitts, who piloted Athens' High School basketball teams to two national and three state titles before going to Rice and winning that school's first and second Southwest Conference football championships.

Harvard Sextet Meets Undefeated Dartmouth

A quadrangular hockey game between Harvard and the undefeated Dartmouth Indians at 8:30 tonight at the Arena headlines a big week-end of activity for Harvard teams. Other contests will find the basketball and swimming teams at Hanover for Ivy League engagements.

Dartmouth has a fine sextet this year and ranks as the choice to win the Ivy League title again this season. The Big Green sextet has won 39 of its last 41 games against American colleges. Its record of six victories and no defeats gave it the Quad League title last winter and it tied with Toronto and Queen's for second place in the International ice loop.

Harvard hoopsters pulled the Big Green has defeated Colby 8-3, big upset of the week when they conquered Columbia which had figured to be a power in the league so it looks as though the hoop race was turning into a set of unpredictables. Bud Finegan, who palyed so well in Harvard's win over the Lions has a bad ankle injury and will not be able to play against the Indians.

Harvard is a slight favorite over Dartmouth in the swim meet. Dartmouth has one of its best teams of recent years and also has many fine sophs and along with a new coach, Karl Mitchell, to make the prospects bright for a successful season.

This will be the first meet of the season for the Indians. Harvard has defeated the Alumni, 34-32, and the Greenwood Memorial Club,, 57-18. Outstanding on the Harvard team are Capt. Eric Cutler in the distance swims, Jim Curwen and Fran Powers in the sprints, and Art Dunworth in the backstroke

Americans Ask Waivers on Trio

MONTREAL, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press)—Waivers have been asked on Hooley Smith, Buzz Boll and Doc Romnes by New York Americans of the National Hockey League, it was learned today.

According to the waiver ruling, the Americans may offer the three veterans for sale to any minor league club if no other N. H. L. team wants them at the League's waiver price of $5000.

Wilson Picks Baby Winners 3 Days in Row

Leading the parade in the 17-day race meet at Tropical Park with 41 winners, Dave Wilson is keeping up the pace at Hialeah Park where the racing opened Wednesday.

In three days of racing there, the blond Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser handicapper has nine winners to his credit as follows:

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 10
First race—Chance Cut—$34.50
Fifth race—Count Morse (entry)—$3.20
Eighth race—Memory Book—$6.20

THURSDAY, JAN. 11
First race—Five Fifty—$3.90
Fifth race—Little Risk—$3.20
Sixth race—Napper Tandy—$5.10

FRIDAY, JAN. 12
First race—Miss Frances—$3.60
Fourth race—Zelkova—$5.70
Sixth race—Red Deck $5.70

Here is the extraordinary feature of Wilson's record to date at Hialeah:

The first race on each daily card has been for two-year-olds, "baby races" they are called, for horses which never went to the post before.

Wilson, who knows his horses, has picked the winner on the three successive days. No other handicapper in the nation pulled the trick.

Summers Out In U. S. Squash

DETROIT, Jan. 13 (AP) — Ed Shaefer, 26-year-old Pittsburgher, and Al Ramzey, Cleveland, who at 38 is the best player in the National Professional Squash Racquets tournament here, were favored to emerge from semi-final matches today and to meet in the finals tomorrow.

Schaefer's opponent in the semi-finals was Tom Iannicelli of Short Hills, N. J., national squash tennis title-holder and third seeded in the tourney here. Ramsay was to meet 21-year-old Jimmy Garvin, Buffalo, N. Y., all-around athlete.

Results of quarter-final matches: Schiefer defeated Leif Nordlie, New York, 15—10, 15—11, 15—10.

Iannicelli defeated Vic Kraeman, Cleveland, 18—16, 17—7, 15—10.

Ramsay defeated Harry Conlon, Buffalo, 15—7, 15—8, 15—7

Garvin defeated Jack McAndrews, Detroit, 19—15, 15—7, 15—13.

Jack Summers, M. I. T. coach, three times champion and seeded No. 1 in the present tournament, was eliminated by Schaefer in the first round, 17—16, 12—15, 15—7, 12—15, 15—10.

Leo Cummings of New York, champion in 1939, did not defend his title.

Bees Cleared In 'Shoplift'

CHICAGO, Jan. 13 (INS)—The Boston National League Baseball Club today was exonerated of charges of "shoplifting" player Emil Ference from the Niagara Falls Club, by Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis.

The protest was filed by the Buffalo club of the International League to whom Ference had written for a tryout.

Buffalo told him to workout with the Niagara Falls team, and after the workout he was signed to a Boston contract by a scout in the stands.

Buffalo protested, charging "player lampering," whereupon Boston transferred Ference to Niagara Falls. Ference protested to the commissioner that he did not wish to play with Niagara Falls.

Landis held that Boston's assignment of his contract was unfair, and made Ference a free agent.

Englehardt Skating King At Walpole

Francis P. Englehardt of Salem this afternoon won the N. E. A. A. U. one-mile speed skating championship, staged at Turner's pond, Walpole. The ice was slushy, which accounted for the poor time of 3:08.4.

Second was John Simmons of Stamford, Ct., and third was Alex Goguen of Fitchburg.

The 880-yard special for Walpole residents was won by Jack Timmons; second was Bill Hagblom, and third, Bill Fisher. The time was 1:48.

The hockey game between Walpole High School and Roxbury Latin School had to be postponed because of poor ice conditions.

Kronis K. O.'s Heard In Lynn's Top Bout

Steve Kronis of Cambridge, All America novice champion, knocked out Jackie Heard, Boston, to win the final of the 126-pound class in the Pioneer A. A. Golden Glove grand finals held at the Lynn Arena.

Heavyweight Class—Bill Weinberg, Chelsea, knocked out Ken Jason, Cohasset, three.

147-Pound Class—Bill Buckless, Saugus, defeated Joe Picarello, Middleton, three.

160-Pound Class—Tommy Albanese, East Boston, defeated Charlie Sergei, Boston, three.

135-Pound Class—Al Dutra, Cambridge, won by default over Steve Bomel, Lowell.

MELROSE, NEWTON TRIUMPH

The Greater Boston Interscholastic Schoolboys shifted to the Arena for the first time this season for their fifth round, today.

In the opening half of the weekly quartet, Melrose and Newton, shareholders of the leadership, met Cambridge Latin and Medford respectively.

Melrose-Cambridge

FIRST PERIOD

Melrose had the upper hand for the first two thirds but was unable to get a clear shot at Randall until Rush Priestly broke up a Cambridge attack and soloed up the ice, to beat Randall on an easy shot.

Score: Melrose 1, Cambridge Latin 0.

SECOND PERIOD

The Cantabs evened the count when Bob Mulcahy slapped in Capt. John Powers' rebound. Melrose again pulled ahead when Charles Noyes grabbed a loose puck out of a scramble and shot. Randall saved but Priestly banged in the rebound.

Score: Melrose 2, Cambridge Latin 1.

THIRD PERIOD

Ed Noyes easily beat John Randall on a long shot from outside the blue line one minute and 33 seconds after the whistle blew. Ed Cahoon climaxed the scoring when he skated in on Randall at 8:47, and fired a low corner shot.

Final score: Melrose 4, Cambridge Latin 1.

Newton-Medford

FIRST PERIOD

It took a little over three minutes for Newton to break into the scoring column. Tom Dugan's shot caromed off Dave Cumming's stick and sailed by Frank Tuminelli in the Medford cage.

Newton added four more goals late in the period. Walter Hurley accounted for two; Phil Fessenden one and Gordon Goodband whacked in Gallagher's rebound.

Score—Newton 5, Medford 0.

SECOND PERIOD

The wild scoring continued for the first part of the second stanza as the red light flickered four times within the first three minutes. Capt. Will Riley and McLean combined for Medford's first, the former tallying at 1:01.

Thirty-three seconds later Tom Dugan added Newton's sixth goal. Will Riley came back four seconds later for Medford's second and McLean again assisting. Dugan again counted for Newton when he combined with Paul Hines at 2:42.

At the 8:05 mark Riley scored his third goal of the period. Thirty-two seconds later Walter Hurley added Newton's eighth goal.

Score—Newton 8, Medford 3.

THIRD PERIOD

Art Lawless replaced Tuminelli in the Medford goal in this period. After making one save, Tom Dugan let go a shot that went through his legs and into the cage at 2:01. Medford continued its alternating process in scoring since breaking into the scoring column the previous period when Jack Carroll took a pass from Al Greaves directly in front of the Newton net and registered. The time was 3:55.

Final score: Newton 9, Medford 4.

Leahy Elated At Five-Year Term Report

The Boston College grid picture is once again hanging on the sport page wall. This morning, a report, apparently one with foundation, was circulated to the effect that Frank Leahy, head coach of the succesful Eagle grid machine, was about to be honored with a new five-year contract. This afternoon, the report began to look authentic, even though officials of the Chestnut Hill institution were busy avoiding any direct denial.

At his home in Newton Coach Leahy, when informed of the rumor, remarked:

"No, I haven't heard of any new contract, but it would certainly be welcome."

John P. Curley, Boston College's graduate manager of athletics, could not be reached for a statement. Curley, after an attack of the grippe, is convalescing at an out-of-town retreat for the week-end.

It's a known fact that Coach Leahy, after his marvelous first season at Boston College, has been the object of at least four attractive offers. But Leahy has often stated that he'd like nothing better than a permanent home in the Hub. So it would take a real big proposition to steal him from the Heights.

Considering the success of his first team at Boston College it seems logical that Leahy will be honored with a new contract.
